Weather Forecast: Rain To-night and Colder.

VOL. 7—No. 240. Copyright, 1910, by the New England Newspaper Publishing Company. BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 19, 1910. Entered at Boston Postoffice. ONE CENT.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 19.—All communication with Savannah, Ga., was severed at 9:20 a. m., indicating that the full force of the Southern hurricane had just struck that city. Savannah is on the river eighteen miles from the sea.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Oct. 19.—The Cuban hurricane is sweeping up the southeast coast, cutting off town after town from communication, rolling a huge tidal wave over the coast towns, leaving a swath of death in its wake and causing property loss almost incalculable.

Jacksonville, Brunswick, Savannah, and all points to the South are entirely cut off from communication with the world. Wire companies are coming all business to Valdosta, Ga., and endeavoring to force messengers through to the stricken towns. Effects of the storm are felt from twenty to thirty miles inland.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 19.—For five hundred miles from the southern point of Florida the Atlantic coast has been battered by a hurricane for thirty six hours, and the storm is still raging to-day on land and sea.

The fate of several cities in southern Florida is still in doubt. The fate of the coast inhabitants is unknown, but it is believed that the loss of life will be heavy. The gale, at times exceeding in velocity 100 miles an hour, is whipping up tidal waves along the shore and driving the water far inland.

BRUNSWICK, GA., COMPLETELY CUT OFF.

It is impossible to reach Southern points except in roundabout ways. Wires have been torn down by the fury of the gale and cause delay in sending trouble to Brunswick—the last from the world. The storm extends from the Florida keys to north of Charleston, S. C.

Desperate efforts are being made to communicate with Brunswick, Ga., on St. Simons Island, eighty miles southeast of this city. It was completely cut off from the world to-day, and the fate of its 10,000 inhabitants was unknown as at early hour.

Utmost efforts are being made to save the last quantity of cotton on the docks. Hundreds are moving from this city to-day, fearing the onrush of waters. Shipping circles are ignorant of the position of vessels known to be in the storm area. As a result of the destruction of the wireless tower which was shattered at midnight Tybee Island has been deserted as to its residents in horror lest the island be overwhelmed.

Fear Many Vessels Are Lost.

The schooner Martin and the steamer Hugo have been wrecked by the hurricane. The crew of six on the schooner Martin and ten on the Hugo have been rescued by the Hill line steamer Inventor, which is proceeding to Liverpool. It is feared many other vessels have been cast.

Forty thousand square miles of territory south of Jacksonville has been without means of communication with the outside world for more than twenty-four hours, and the reports from that section, engaging territory south of a line from Tampa to St. Augustine, full of hurricane winds, mostly increasing in intensity and rapidly falling barometers. The orange and vast trucking industry in that territory were reported probably ruined. Jacksonville escaped heavy property damage.

It is believed there was no loss of life in that vicinity. Along the eastern coast many lives are believed to have been lost and the property damage must have been great.

All Wires Are Down.

There is no communication with any point south of Jacksonville, with the exception of St. Augustine, and all wires north, with one exception, fained shortly before dark. It probably will be several days before the telegraph companies can restore their service to the vast storm-swept territory of southern Florida.

A heavy downpour of rain accompanied the high winds everywhere. At St. Augustine buses in the business section were flooded at low tide, with a promise of further

NASHUA, N. H., HAS 26,005 POPULATION

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 19.—The Census Bureau to-day made public the following population returns:

Lowell, Clinton, 25,377; last census, 22,698; increase, 12.7.

New Hampshire—Nashua, 26,005; last census, 23,898; increase, 8.8.

HURRICANE SWEEPS NORTH—NEW ENGLAND IS GIVEN WARNING

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—While Atlantic coast will be whipped by the storm which has swept Southern states during the last two days, according to an announcement made by the Weather Bureau to-day.

New England is in danger from a combination of atmospheric disturbances.

The chief forecaster said that the territory near the coast between Savannah and Jacksonville will probably be visited again to-day by a hurricane and heavy rain. Hurricane warnings were sent to points along the coast as far North as Norfolk, Va., and ordinary storm warnings as far North as points in Northern New Jersey. The velocity of the wind at Savannah, Ga., last night was registered at sixty miles.

WORLD BALLOON RECORDS BROKEN IN ST. LOUIS RACE

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 19.—All records for balloon flight distances are believed to have been broken by the balloons competing in the race for the James Gordon Bennett cup, which started from St. Louis Monday afternoon. A large balloon believed to be the Germania, passed over Manitowning, Little Current and Manitoulin Island late last night, traveling northeast. The captain of the tug Keenan sighted it first shortly before midnight, passing northeast over the North Channel, three miles northeast of here. The tug whistled and the balloon answered with a horn.

MEN ON BOAT HEAR AERONAUTS TALK.

I rose on the tug also heard the balloon men talking. They were about 1,500 feet up. If they have not descended they would be now west of Sudbury. The air pilots wanted to know their position, but did not report the name of their balloon.

From the best information obtainable, Captain Von Abercon, the German pilot, in his balloon Germania, was still in the lead, with the American second, the Swiss Helvetia and Amelia, the French Isle de France and the German balloons Harburg III. and Dusseldorf II. close behind.

The St. Louis No. 3, Condor and Million Club have lost all chance of the trophy by landing. St. Louis, No. 3, H. E. Honeywell, pilot, and J. W. Toland, able, was the third balloon reported down in the race. It landed near the shore of Lake Huron at Hillman, Mich., 656 miles from St. Louis. Honeywell said he would have attempted to cross the lake, but his ballast was getting low.

The balloon Condor, Jacques Faurer pilot, and H. C. Schmick, able, landed about four miles north of Two Rivers, Wis., 412 miles from St. Louis, on the shore of Lake Michigan. The airmen had been over Lake Michigan for one hour and fifteen minutes at a height of about fifty feet before an air current carried them to shore, where they landed.

The second hope of the St. Louis Aero Club, the balloon Million Club, Louis Van Thal pilot, with J. M. O'Reilly able, was the first to land.

MANSFIELD RETIRES FROM RACE

Frederick W. Mansfield, named at the Democratic State convention in Faneuil Hall as a tentative candidate for Governor, withdrew to-day, and Frederick J. Macleod, Joseph A. Maynard and William P. Hayes of the Committee of Four met at noon at the Democratic State headquarters, No. 15 Beacon street, and signed a paper substituting Congressman Eugene N. Foss as the Democratic gubernatorial candidate in place of Mansfield.

Then they tried to get into communication with Robert J. Cromley of Lowell, fourth member of the committee, to get him to sign the paper, too. The three members took action as soon as they got word from Mansfield that he had withdrawn.

Foss will withdraw his nomination papers as a Democratic Progressive candidate as soon as the papers substituting Foss for Mansfield as the regular Democratic nominee are filed with the Secretary of State. The time limit for the substitution is 5 p. m. on Monday next. Plymouth County indicted grant to hold a big rally in Brockton Friday evening. It is understood that Foss will open personal headquarters in the Quincy House.

Macleod's Statement.

This statement was made by Chairman Macleod of the Democratic State committee when he reached his office to-day:

"It has been a long, hard road to travel, but the obstacles have all been surmounted and we are now out in the clearing. Now for work. Plans will be made at once for a ratification meeting in Tremont Temple and Faneuil Hall off next Saturday evening, at which Foss and Cassidy will be the principal speakers. The State will be flooded with speakers and literature, and it will be a rush campaign for twenty days."

Mr. Mansfield explained his action in this statement:

"When I was nominated for Governor by the Democratic Convention at Faneuil Hall it was under the express condition and solemn pledge that I would withdraw if the committee of four appointed at the same time could agree upon another candidate. Conditions have so changed that I considered for me to withdraw would be unfair. I have kept my pledge and have withdrawn. All arguments can fairly be used against me as unfit before a nomination are made and proper. But as the matter has spoken through its action and has now made a nomination my personal views of mine are disadvowed and overruled, and I, as a member of the Democratic party will—

"FREDERICK W. MANSFIELD."

Was Against Foss.

It had been quoted as saying: "I will not withdraw for Foss," and when the Democratic committee named Congressman N. Foss as the man to head the State ticket. It was said that much depended on Mansfield's action. Foss was defeated by a majority of one and a half of eleven.

Mr. Mansfield withdrew as a candidate for nomination by the committee as the result of the balloting by speaking letters was announced. Then it was said to Mansfield. Until he made announcement to-day he had refused to say when he would quit.

The endorsement of Thomas F. Cassidy for Lieutenant Governor by the committee of four makes Cassidy the regular Democratic candidate. The Democratic Independents will go into effect his name on the ballot. The names of the ballot Low Confirmation to succeed Clifton H. Loring as a regularly nominated candidate prominated the designation "Democratic" after the name of candidate for second place.

Charles J. Martell, a Boston lawyer, has also announced that the candidate for Secretary of State in place of O. T. E. Chandler Holbrook, who withdrew several days ago. The rest of the ticket remains as made up by the convention—Governor, Benjamin F. Avery of Lynn; Auditor, Charles C. Paine of Hyannis; Attorney-General John B. Reagan of Worcester.

WELLMAN PLANS ANOTHER FLIGHT

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Officers of the syndicate which backed Walter Wellman's daring attempt to cross the ocean in his giant dirigible America stand ready to finance a second attempt to link the resort with Europe by the airship route.

"We will support Wellman in any further air ventures which he may undertake," declared President Joseph W. Sidis of the Wellman Company. "The man has proven himself to be one of the largest of modern times and with his loss he accomplished a feat far beyond anything of its kind ever known. I stand ready to head a syndicate to raise any amount of money necessary for another trial if Wellman decides it feasible. The hangar at the pole will be left standing and work will be started on the building of another ballon from the material Wellman gives the order.

Confidence in Aviator.

"Every person in Atlantic City is proud of Wellman and his men. Those who supported him and those who doubted him have now united in praise of the America's crew and nothing can shatter the fate of Atlantic City as the leader of his men.

"To Mrs. Wellman and the brave women who awaited the outcome of the perilous venture go bravely there is due the respect of the entire world. Our only hope is that we will be able to persuade them to return to this city at once and conduct further operations for injury."

Had Narrow Escape.

After escaping from the wrecked balloon America into their element, Walter Wellman and his crew of five men had a narrow escape from death by drowning at sea. This was revealed to-day when from the wireless on board the steamer Trent there was flashed out further thrilling details of the saving of the six men early yesterday.

Emil M. Gilsberg, the wireless operator in a message to the National News Association via the United Wireless, told how the men escape the most bad had. It is indeed for a time as if the Trent would lose them the element in which the airship they had embarked, and the larger vessel passed the lifeboat so closely that it was rocked by the wash from the larger vessel. At the time Gilsberg sent this dispatch the vessel was fifty-five miles south east of Sandy Hook.

The Trent, with the airship survivors on board, was sighted in the ocean early this morning. She was in a fog which has held up shipping around New York. It was said that she could not reach port before afternoon.

Thrilling Rescue Story.

The story of the rescue as sent by Gilsberg was thrilling. It follows:

Steamer Trent, 8 a. m., thirty-two miles southeast of the Hook, crew of America. After seeing all aboard, are feeling well and none the worse for their thrilling experience. From what I can gather in conversation with Irwin, the most exciting moment of the three days was after the landing of the America's lifeboat. The Trent being down in full speed on the south boat. Irwin declares for the moment it looked as if she would go her in half. The Trent appeared to him the side of the Singer building

GALVIN IS FOR SHIP SUBSIDY

J. Mitchell Galvin, Republican candidate for Congress in the Tenth District, at a meeting held at the Walworth Manufacturing Works to-day, declared that he was a "stand pat" Republican. He said that if elected he would give the largest half to the district and there discuss with his constituents any legislation that might come before Congress. "I favor a ship subsidy bill," he said. "This bill has been opposed consistently by the Democrats in Congress. The passage of such a bill would be of tremendous advantage to develop the commercial advantages of South Boston."

FLAG ECHO OF COLUMBUS DAY

Charged with malicious mischief in cutting out the cross on an Italian flag on Columbus Day, Joseph Perinon employed in the tailor shop of H. L. Slater in Salem street, was to-day arraigned before Judge Wentworth in the Municipal Court. His case was continued until Friday. He was held in $100.

According to the police Perinon cut out the cross in a flag belonging to Gaeano Pocardi. As it was an Italian flag, no arrest could be made specifically as desecrating the American flag, so the charge of malicious mischief was lodged against Perinon.

SENATOR ELKINS IS SERIOUSLY ILL

ELKINS, W. Va., Oct. 19.—Senator Stephen B. Elkins, the senior Senator from this State, is in a critical condition at his home, "Halliehurst," near here. He is 67 years of age and his condition has been such that this Summer for the first time in many years he was unable to go abroad as had been his custom, or even to be moved from this district. He has been suffering from a nervous affection, which has now reached the critical stage.

TAFT TO HELP OUT N. Y. REPUBLICANS

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Chairman Lloyd C. Griscom of the New York County Republican Committee announced to-day that President Taft would lend his aid to the Republicans in the New York State campaign by asking one of his cabinet officers to speak for the ticket headed by H. L. Stimson. Attorney-General Wickersham, Secretary Nagel or Secretary Wilson will be the man chosen.

PACKERS ORDERED TO ENTER PLEAS

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—After failure of counsel to agree, Judge Landis to-day ordered the nine millionaire packers indicted in connection with the formation of the alleged beef trust, to enter pleas on or before December tenth. Informers Mayer and Miller appeared. The packers and United States District Attorney Sims and his assistant John Wilkerson for the government.

HOLD WALTHAM SESSION LEGAL

The State Relief Law Commission today sustained the Democratic Middlesex County District Attorney convention held in Waltham as the true and legal expression of the voters of the county. The convention nominated James J. Irwin of Everett for District Attorney.

This decision ends the controversy following the Democratic Middlesex County District Attorney convention that was held at Lowell and which the Superior Court of the State declared to be illegal. John J. Higgins, the Republican nominee for re-election, was chosen by the illegal convention.

Middlesex County Democrats protested the Lowell convention, declaring that the nomination was stolen for Higgins. A hearing was held in the Superior Court, at that time Mr. Higgins announced that he would decline the Democratic nomination.

COTTON WILL SOAR FOLLOWING CYCLONE

GALVESTON, Tex., Oct. 19.—Cotton dealers here predict cotton will soar to the highest price since the Civil War because of the Cuban hurricane. It advanced $1 a bale here. The steamship Progreso, which was believed to have been lost in the hurricane, was reported safe at Havana.

JUROR COLLAPSES AT HEARING CRIPPEN TALE

LONDON, Oct. 19.—Suddenly stricken with illness, a juror toppled over in the box at the trial of Dr. H. H. Crippen for the murder of his wife, Belle Elmore, this day, and the trial came to a sensational halt for two hours. The juror, Louis Greene, was carried into an anteroom, where he was attended by Drs. Wilcox and Marshall, two of the expert witnesses. At the time Greene was stricken Inspector Dew of Scotland Yard, who arrested Crippen and Ethel Claire Le Neve on the high seas, was on the stand.

The same mighty multitude resulted about the historic court of old Bailey before the day's session, when Dr. Crippen, looking, if possible, more natty and calm than yesterday, was ushered into the court-room.

The throng of stylishly dressed women, many of them attired in gowns of the latest Paris mode, was packed solidly in the spectators' seats and was augmented by pluses and aliases with tickets and bright colors.

Case Will Be Rushed.

No sooner had Lord Chief Justice Alverstone set the wheels of the law in motion when it was evident that the case would be rushed with all possible speed.

All of the scientists who testified at the inquest and the preliminary hearing were on hand. Inspector Dew was the first witness called.

He had not got far into his story when Greene pitched forward in his seat and fell upon the floor.

Instantly the courtroom was in a tremendous state of excitement, but Crippen wheeled in his chair and looked with professional calmness on the scene. Court attaches rushed to the juror's box, where the stricken man was being supported by two of his fellows.

Greene was carried through the crowded courtroom into an anteroom. It was believed that Greene had given way to the excitement attending the famous case, and that his nerves had fallen prey to the gruesome details which were being brought out.

Crippen Calm During Recess.

It was two hours before the juror had recovered sufficiently to take his seat in the box. During the long wait, Dr. Crippen paced calmly about him or held whispered conferences with his counsel Alfred A. Tobin, M. P., Huntley Wilkins and Arthur de Mornay. He seemed to have a great deal to say to his lawyers and was apparently not worried.

Inspector Dew went back to the very first of his story of telling how Scotland Yard had been notified that Mrs. Cora Crippen was mysteriously missing, and that an investigation should be made. The detective said that Scotland Yard had first learned of the suspicious circumstances of Mrs. Crippen's disappearance by John Nash, a theatrical manager. Nash had just returned from America early in the summer, where Mrs. Crippen's friends were very much alarmed.

Following Nash's visit to the central office of London's detective force, Dew said he went to No. 39 Hilldrop Crescent, North London, where the Crippens had been living, and interviewed Crippen. The inspector later went to Crippen's office and again to his residence, according to his story on the stand.

Allowed to Search House.

"Dr. Crippen answered all my questions readily and allowed me to search the house without protest. He was not worried and quite cool when we went into the cellar," Solicitor Tobin questioned Dew keenly, but was unable to shake his story.

Inspector Dew then told Crippen said Inspector Dew replied—

"Dr. Crippen promised me to do his best to find his wife. He declared that she had fled and that he was certain she was with Bruce Miller, who as a former actor was quite friendly with her."

Dew ended his story. Dew said that following the finding of the remains in the cellar of the Crippen home on July 13, Dr. Crippen disappeared entirely.

Dew told how Scotland Yard men had searched them among the passengers of the Montrose, bound for Quebec. That Crippen was fleeing to America, and how Chief Inspector Dew sailed with the American-bound ships leaving French ports.

The witness told of information coming from Captain Kendall of the liner Montrose, bound for Canada, which stated that Crippen and Ethel Leneve, the latter disguised as a boy, were on board.

TWELVE HURT WHEN CROWDED CARS COLLIDED

PORTSMOUTH, Oct. 19.—Twelve men were badly hurt, one probably fatally, and a hundred severely shaken up when two crowded trolley cars crashed together early today on Fort Hill, Kittery, Me., carrying men from their way to work in the Portsmouth Navy Yard.

One of the cars had gone almost up the hill when the power gave out. The car started backward. The wheels slid over the wet track. The car gained frightful momentum, striking the second car at the foot of the hill and smashing it to pieces. The first car was also badly wrecked.

The injured are:

GEORGE S. GENNISON, concussion of the brain. Expected to die.

ASA WILSON, ribs broken and arm cut.

THOMAS BILLINGS, ribs broken.

WILLIAM FOYE, head gashed.

MAILARD EMERY, ribs crushed.

ANSEL HUTCHINGS, legs and head crushed.

MARTIN WILLIAMS, ear torn off and head cut.

HERBERT SEAWARD, both legs crushed.

ARTHUR KIMBALL, right leg bruised.

ALBERT SPENCER, motorman of the second car, arm cut and legs injured.

FRED TREFETHEN, legs and hand cut.

ELMER CATCH, ribs broken and head cut.

The more seriously injured were taken to the Cottage Hospital in this city. Others were treated and removed to their homes. There were about fifty men on each car. This is the second accident of the kind on this hill. All of the injured live in Kittery.

GOLF CHAMPIONS IN FOX HILLS MATCH

CLIFTON, N. Y., Oct. 19.—Golfers flocked to the Fox Hills club links on Staten Island today for the foursome match between past and present professional champions. The participants are Alex Smith, Wykagyl and George Low, Ballusrol, on one side and Isaac Mackie of Fox Hills and Willie Anderson, Philadelphia Cricket Club, on the other. The match was delayed in starting owing to the heavy fog, but the conditions later gave promise to be ideal, there being so little wind. A year ago Smith narrowly defeated Mackie on his home course in a remarkable match. Smith is now national open champion.

YOU SURELY MUST TRY THIS WHEN YOU HAVE A BAD COLD OR GRIPPE

You will distinctly feel your cold breaking and all the Grippe symptoms leaving after taking the very first dose.

It is a positive fact that Pape's Cold Compound, taken every two hours, until three consecutive doses are taken, will end the Grippe and break up the most severe cold, either in the head, chest, back, stomach or limbs.

It promptly relieves the most miserable neuralgia pains, headache, dullness, head and nose stuffed up, feverishness, sneezing, sore throat, running of the nose, mucous catarrhal discharges, soreness, stiffness and rheumatic twinges.

Pape's Cold Compound is the result of three years' research at a cost of more than fifty thousand dollars, and contains no quinine, which we have conclusively demonstrated is not effective in the treatment of colds or grippe.

Take this harmless compound as directed, with the knowledge that there is no other medicine made anywhere else in the world which will cure your cold or end grippe misery as promptly and without any other assistance or bad after-effects as a 25-cent package of Pape's Cold Compound, which any druggist in the world can supply.

BOSTON BEEF PACKERS HELD IN LARGE BAIL

Two Boston men, who with several other beef packers were indicted by the federal grand jury Monday, charged with conspiring to restrain trade, were today arraigned and held in $5,000 bail for a later hearing.

They are Horatio W. Heath of the Consolidated Rendering Company and Cyrus W. Hapgood, manager of the New England Rendering Company. Heath was held in $5,000 on two counts, making his total bail $10,000. The first count charges him with conspiring to restrain trade and the second with entering into a combination to restrain trade.

Hapgood was indicted on but one count. His bail was set at $5,000. Both men were represented by the law firm of Hutchinson & Hutchinson. They were arraigned before Judge Dodge in the United States District Court. In settling the amount of bail the court did not announce the date of the hearing.

The main plant of the Consolidated Companies is at Portland, Me., while the New England company has headquarters in Cambridge.

RHODE ISLAND REPUBLICANS IN CONVENTION

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 19.—The Republican State convention opened in Infantry Hall at 10:30 o'clock. The State ticket was nominated as agreed upon at yesterday's meeting of the State Committee, and is as follows:

Governor—Aram J. Pothier of Woonsocket.

Lieutenant Governor—Zenas W. Bliss of Cranston.

Secretary of State—J. Fred Parker of Providence.

General Treasurer—Walter A. Read of Gloucester.

Attorney General—William B. Greenough of Providence.

Representative Richard W. Jennings of Cranston was temporary chairman and was made permanent chairman. In his address, Chairman Jennings recited the achievements of the national and State administrations. In his opening he said:

"The opportunity for public service that the home affords places a grave responsibility on this gathering, for we must not be unmindful that we represent the only agency where decent and efficient administration of public affairs can be looked for."

The platform adopted by the convention starts off with an indorsement of the Taft administration, expresses gratitude to Senator Aldrich for the honor conferred on the State by his achievements and recommends to the voters of the State twenty-one years of service, indorses the tariff and the State administration and calls for support of the convention's nominees on the Republican ticket.

Of the Taft administration the platform says: "We indorse the able, dignified and progressive administration of William Howard Taft."

Next it takes up the legislative achievements of the administration and refers to the revision of the tariff, the regulation of the railroads, the establishment of postal savings banks, the pensioning of the white slave traffickers and the addition of two new States to the union. The language used regarding the tariff follows:

"The tariff has been revised according to the basic principles of the Republican party to protect American labor and capital and encourage home industries, and the Republican party of Rhode Island again asserts its approval."

Of Senator Aldrich this is said:

"We sincerely regret that Nelson W. Aldrich, who for twenty-nine years has represented the State, has declined to accept another term. We express our confidence in his integrity and our gratitude for the honor he has conferred on his State by his achievements."

The platform contains a plank calling for the establishment of a bureau on taxation to make a further study of tax problems.

ALLEGE SCHEME TO DEFRAUD B. & M.

An alleged scheme used to defraud the Boston & Maine out of fares from Boston to Portland came to light in the arrest by Deputy United States Marshal Young and Waters of N. Norris Hall, a conductor in the employ of that road, and James H. Barnes, a grocer of No. 157 Bedford street. Both men live in Medford. A complaint charges the men with conspiracy to violate the Interstate Commerce Law. When arraigned before the commissioner both men pleaded not guilty and were held in $1,000 for a hearing on October 21.

This Will Stop Your Cough in a Hurry

Save $2 by Making This Cough Syrup at Home.

This recipe makes a pint of better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for $2.50. A few doses usually conquer the most obstinate cough—stops even whooping cough quickly. Simple as it is, no better remedy can be had at any price.

Mix one pint of granulated sugar with ½ pint of warm water, and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a pint bottle; then add the Sugar Syrup. It has a pleasant taste and lasts a family a long time. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

You can feel this take hold of a cough in a way that means business. Has a good tonic effect, braces up the appetite and is slightly laxative, too, which is helpful. A handy remedy for hoarseness, bronchitis, asthma and all throat and lung troubles.

The effect of pine on the membranes is well known. Pine is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norwegian white pine extract, and is rich in guiaicol and all the natural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this formula.

This Pinex and Sugar Syrup recipe has attained great popularity throughout the United States and Canada. It has often been imitated, though never successfully.

A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Civic Honors to Be Paid Julia Ward Howe During Funeral

Services to Be Held at 2 O'Clock To-morrow from Church of the Disciples.

The funeral service for Mrs. Julia Ward Howe will be conducted by the Rev. Samuel A. Eliot, D. D., president of the American Unitarian Association, at the Church of the Disciples, corner of Jeffreys and Peterboro streets, in the Fenway, to-morrow afternoon. The service will begin at two o'clock. Dr. Eliot will be assisted in the service by another clergymen to be selected by him.

The arrangements for the funeral, so far as announced now, are as follows:

The body of Mrs. Howe, reposing in its white broadcloth casket, will be taken from the Green St. summer house at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning in one of Mrs. Howe's automobiles to the Newport railroad station, five miles away. It will be placed aboard a special car attached to the nine o'clock train for Boston. This train arrives in Boston about 11:45. The body will be taken directly to the church.

Funeral Will Be Public.

The funeral will be public. As many will be admitted to the service as the church will hold, but the casket will not be opened for those attending the funeral to gaze upon the face of Mrs. Howe.

There will be eight pallbearers. Five are grandsons of Mrs. Howe, John Rickards, Henry Hall Richards, Julian Howe Hall, Henry Marion Hall and Samuel Prescott Hall. The other three, nephews of Mrs. Howe's granddaughters, are Rev. Hugh Birckhead, Charles Wiggles and Carlton Shaw.

The last words uttered by Mrs. Howe were:

"God will help me."

This was about one half hour before she passed away. At that time the only persons present with the dying woman were her daughters, Mrs. Maude Howe Elliott, Mrs. Laura Richards and Mrs. Florence Howe Hall. They were awaiting the final moment. At 11 o'clock Mrs. Howe's life moved feebly. Mrs. Maud Howe Elliot was the only one able to catch the low utterance, "God will help me," with which Mrs. Howe passed into unconsciousness and thence into death.

No Flowers on Casket.

Mrs. Howe passed away in the side room on the ground floor. Today the body reposes in the casket in the front room on the same floor. The features are calm, although she nearly slept. The arms are folded across the breast. The black dress is relieved by a white ruching at the throat. No flowers have been placed on the casket. On the casket's silver plate is the following inscription:

JULIA WARD HOWE.
Born May 27, 1819; died October 17, 1910.

In Boston's eighty schools in morning sessions school children will lay down their text books and for a half hour engage in exercises in memory of Mrs. Howe.

A circular from Superintendent Stratton H. Brooks was received by every master of the schools today.

The circular read:

"You are requested to hold such exercises in your schools as may seem suitable to you in commemoration of the life of the late Mrs. Julia Ward Howe."

Appended was the letter of Mayor Fitzgerald to Superintendent Brooks, suggesting that the observance be held.

In those schools in which it is possible to gather the pupils in the assembly room more extensive exercises than those of the smaller schools are to be held. In such cases addresses will be made by the masters and by veterans of the Civil War.

Children to Sing Hymn.

In the other schools, where each grade has individual exercises, short sketches of the life of Mrs. Howe will be read, selections from her writings and the children will sing "The Battle Hymn of the Republic."

The exercises will be held at different hours, although in the majority of the schools a half hour will be given up to the memorial during the morning session. The school motto given does not permit of separate exercises.

At 6th Glean hundreds of telegrams, letters and other messages have been received. The family considers these messages too sacred for publication, and for that reason has refused to permit them to be published. The members of the New England Women's Club wish to extend to Mrs. Howe's family their deepest sympathy. The club has lost its founder and president.

MAY ALDEN WARD, President.

The New Jersey Woman Suffrage Association mourns the death of one of the greatest pioneers and leaders in the women's suffrage and the world's betterment, and sends sincere sympathy.

CLARA LADDEY, President.

Tributes Pour in from All Sections of the Country for Great Woman.

the great loss to the world in the departure of your noble mother, while they are profoundly grateful for a long life of helpful service.

ANNA H. SHAW, President.

Messages of condolence continue to pour in to the grief stricken relatives from kind friends. Many of these messages were sad made public.

Booker T. Washington, head of Tuskegee University, has sent the following message:

"Please permit me to express my deep sympathy with the family in the death of Mrs. Howe. In doing this, however, I cannot refrain from expressing deep gratitude that one so much loved by the people of this country has lived the period of such a beautiful, strong and useful life. Since Mrs. Howe has belonged to the world, and not to any one family, I feel that I am justified in expressing my sympathy."

Others were received from the American Academy of Arts and Letters, of which William Dean Howells is president, and the Alameda, Cal., Club of Fortnightly.

The Armenian Citizens' Club sent the following message:

"In appreciation of the noble, philanthropic life work of the late Mrs. Julia Ward Howe personally and more especially for the Armenian people in their most trying times, we, in behalf of the Armenian community of Fresno, Cal., extend our sincere sympathy."

POSTMASTERS IN CONVENTION

The annual meeting of the New England Postmasters' Association opened at the American House today with an attendance of more than 150 members. The morning session was devoted to the discussion of the social needs of officers of the third class and how to increase the receipts of the small offices and reduce the work of good conditions.

At the afternoon session Postmaster Cockett of North Easton spoke on the "Status of Smaller Offices." Postmaster Judd of Southampton delivered an address on "Delivery Methods in the Smaller Offices."

A reception at 6 o'clock will be followed by a banquet, during which Senator Lodge, Governor Draper and congressman Greene will speak.

HUNDREDS FIGHT FOREST FIRES

PORT JERVIS, N. Y., Oct. 19.—Forest fires caused by the scorch of a careless smoker, are being fought today by hundreds of men. The flames threatened to sweep the village of Monagan, the county seat, and State camp, but the efforts of Engineers of the Brandeis Lumber company were set to work to save millions of feet of timber. Wild game, driven before the fire, swam the Delaware river, escaping into Pennsylvania.

BOMB IMPERILS 20 FAMILIE

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Twenty families placed in peril early today when bomb was exploded in front of the big tenement house No. 7 Bedford street, in the Italian district. Not a person was injured, although the explosion was widely heard. Many persons were sleeping when the bomb was exploded. Many of the occupants of the house were panic stricken and rushed into the street. The police were notified.

SOUTHERN COAST IS SWEPT BY THE WORST STORM EVER KNOWN

...ense damage to business property at ... and city. The city was in darkness, the rolling mists were sweeping over the wharves and thousands of dollars in damage has been done property along the water front.

Not a word has come from Tampa since Saturday morning, when the wires began to fail and failed in the midst of a message which told of increasing winds. It is extremely doubtful if word can be received from there for days, as all the wires in that section are down.

Key West Hard Hit.

Key West and Miami, Fla., Mobile and Pensacola, Galveston, Brownsville and points south from there undoubtedly have been in the center of the storm since Saturday morning, and if so the wires are down.

The storm has moved north Sunday, the winds evidently are exceeding fifty miles an hour. Then there were at least forty-seven hours, from Saturday morning to Monday morning, over the inland section, with winds of from forty-five to seventy miles an hour, when the weather was at its worst.

The South Beach section and the east coast of Florida from Miami to Jacksonville felt the storm. The wires were down from the storm. The wires were down the following night, and the wires were down from that time forward. The Miami Herald, which has been issuing bulletins from the Weather Bureau, has not been heard from since Saturday morning.

The territory from which no reports have come for days is entirely inland, however, it is expected by those who have taken up the matter that the first reports from the interior will be received from the coast of the lower keys and the Florida peninsula, that all hands are safe.

The damage will be very heavy and the people are indeed properly lost. Those who have lived in the region say that the storm came with little warning and with more force at all.

ANNIVERSARY OF FIRST CORPS CADETS

The 100th anniversary of the First corps Cadets will be celebrated at the American House tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock. An entertainment has been arranged in conjunction with the General Association, and it is expected that in addition to the usual form of the Corps there will be present a large number of past members and the members. Capt. Jos. O'Gan, Jr., and Lieut. Fred Butler of the National Guard, will deliver a talk illustrated by stereopticon views on the joint maneuvres of 1909 in Massachusetts.

Almost everybody in Boston reads the AMERICAN.

THE CLOTHING CENTRE FOR BARGAINS IS AT THE S. H. Harrison Co

The fact that Harrison's is an recognized centre is ...cribed to one reason only—Bargains. Nothing but Bargains at 662 to 672 Washington street—the greatest bargains in men's, young men's and boys' clothing ever known to Boston.

Our rent is almost nothing compared to the high-cost shopping district rents—above Boylston street—we buy with a vast and intimate knowledge of woolens—everything works toward economy here at the S. H. Harrison Co. store, corner of Beach and Washington streets.

Bargain 1—A magnificent line of the choicest new Fall Suits and overcoats, bought at our own terms when the manufacturer was in need of ready cash. One of the greatest bargains we ever saw. Seems almost a shame to sell below $12.50, but we can do it, and they are yours at the low price of ..... $7.00

Bargain 2—A full and complete assortment of the season's best offerings in all-wool suits and overcoats. A chance par chase at a most expedient time of the year—finest weaves—all the new Fall styles in brown, gray, blue, black, tasseled. Would sell the other side of Boylston street for $20, but this is the Harrison price ..... $10.00

Bargain 3—Our choicest and most stylish complete line of suits and overcoats at even less than a popular price. All the best domestic mills' most select weaves—all wool—season's advanced styles—a bargain at $25, but, oh! what a bargain at the Harrison price of ..... $12.50

Bargain 4—A few remaining Spring overcoats from our $10, $12.50, $15 and $18 broken lines—some silk lined—your choice ..... $4.50

P. S. Open evenings till 9 o'clock. Bring this list for reference on the above goods. Everything in Clothes—Furnishings—Boys' Clothing—Shoes—are to be found at 662 to 672 Washington Street, corner of Beach Street, the home of the S. H. HARRISON CO.

Mail orders filled on all goods—Express paid on all orders over $5. Satisfaction guaranteed or money back on request—no matter what the size of the purchase.

TWO HURT IN CRASH OF FIRE WAGON AND CAR

Richard Kilroy, boreman on Chemical 2, was severely injured, and Driver Edward ... was painfully hurt shortly before 7 a. m. today, when the chemical wagon collided with an outward bound automobile in front of the old Tontine on Franklin street, near Lagrande street. Fifteen persons were in the car who escaped injury, ...onsiderable, and the axle of the hubber was ...ried in and the wagon broken.

Following the impact the driver of the ...omobile, Joseph Rizzo of 1 Hudson street, ran ...ay, but was captured by Officer Patrick ...ilkey, who was detailed to search for him.

Kilroy, who was detained in several ...ospitals in the city before he was taken ...me to Malden last night, was resting ...fortably today. He suffered a fracture of ...e right leg and bruises on the body.

The fire was in charge of the ...ire-store officer, Inspector Beach and ...Washington streets, and was occupied at the Bromfield Bowling Alley. The damage was about $500.

ED. SEARS, HE SAYS HE AIN'T MURDERED

LYNN, Oct. 19.—Ed. Sears puts it all over Jack Johnson. He came back. That's more than Johnson has. He is perfectly entitled to saying that he was not murdered, either.

Ed Sears is—to use his complete name—Edwin W. Sears, Jr., formerly a member of the Lynn Boxer squad. Last Monday the Lynn police received a telephone message from some party unknown. The message was:

"Say, Ellen Sears has been murdered. Send an ambulance down to Lowell. When I reached the scene I found a police department at the ghastly scene of his previous end. All the hospitals were called out.

"Say, have you got Ellen Sears there and to be murdered?

"No, we haven't Ellen, murdered or otherwise," was the unsatisfactory answer in every case.

Last night Ed. returned to town. He was immediately asked:

"Where have you been? Have you been murdered?

"I was never murdered in my life," said Ed., indignantly. "I have been to Lowell, that's all. You see, I had an engagement with Brother Richard in Boston Monday morning. I couldn't keep the engagement. But, because a man misses a date, that's no sign he has been slain.

"I had to go to Lowell. I stayed in Lowell all night. Over my breakfast eggs and coffee the next morning I read in the papers that I was a victim of foul play.

"This is going too far. I ain't been murdered and I can prove it."

JACKSON PROTESTS SUBWAY ROUTE BY WAY OF RIVERBANK

The Riverbank route as now planned, undesirable for other reasons, disregards the need of convenient access to offices and stores, churches and theatres which have heretofore been reached by surface lines in Boylston street. Disastrous results are likely to follow undue haste in committing the public to the building of that subway. It is an idle pretense that harm can come from a further study of the problem. If there is any person to think, and there seems to be an abundant reason, that a substitute for the subway can be provided which will serve those interested in it and at the same time meet the wants of thousands who will be inconvenienced by it, surely two or three months will be time well spent in securing it.—James P. Jackson in letter to Gov. W. A. Bancroft, President of Boston Elevated.

BIG CHELSEA FAIR TO OPEN TO-MORROW

Chelsea manufacturers will open their "Made in Chelsea" exhibition to the new City Hall to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock. The exhibition will close next Saturday noon. It will be followed at 2 p. m. Saturday by the dedication exercises of the new City Hall in the auditorium of that building. Saturday morning the exhibit will be reserved for school children.

The "Made in Chelsea" exhibition was arranged by Chelsea manufacturers to show the different industries of the city, also to demonstrate how rapidly the city has risen from the ashes of its big fire.

There are sixty-one exhibits now ready for view in the basement and ground floor rooms of the City Hall at the junction of Broadway, Washington avenue and Library street.

The exhibits include rubber goods, shoemaking, lithographing, cigar making, manufacture of clothing, box making, woodwork and other industries located in the city.

Admission is by ticket. Tickets may be obtained from the exhibiting manufacturers, the Chelsea Board of Control and city officials.

To-morrow night there will be a manufacturers' banquet in the new Chelsea Armory, at which 500 will be present.

PROF. PECK CALLED HER "TESSIE," SAYS MISS QUINN IN SUIT

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Skirmishing between counsel in the Quinn-Peck breach of promise suit for $50,000 preliminary to the actual battle was continued to-day. At the office of the plaintiff's lawyer, Dan O'Reilly, C. D. Francis, representing the former Columbia professor, went on with the examination into the morals of Miss Esther Quinn of Cambridge, Mass., the scholar's alleged former sweetheart.

"Miss Quinn, do you know a man by the name of Samuel Scott" he began.

"Yes."

"Mr. Scott ran a financial advisory agency in the city of Chicago, did he not?"

"I don't know whether he did."

"Where did you meet Mr. Scott?"

"The first time I remember was in an office he had in New York, in January, 1909."

"You didn't know Mr. Rice in Chicago?" Miss Quinn explained that she didn't know Mr. Rice until she applied to B. H. Scheftels & Co. for a position.

"While you were working for Scheftels in New York did you see Mr. Scott there then?"

"That is objected to," said Mr. O'Reilly.

"Mr. Richardson was also working for Scheftels, wasn't he?" Mr. Francis persisted.

This was also objected to, but Miss Quinn remembered having seen Mr. Scott there.

When did you see him on the second occasion?"

"I saw him in the office where I worked in Boston. He passed by the window where I could look out, and stopped and asked me how I was getting along, then went his way."

Peck's Advice About Her Work.

Miss Quinn denied that she had ever worked in any building in the New York financial district except Scheftels. Dr. Peck had advised her to accept that position, she said.

"I ask you if in that period, 1906, 1907, 1908 and 1909 you didn't work for a broker by the name of Hughes?"

"I never worked for a man of the name of Hughes, and never worked for any broker but Scheftels."

Mr. Francis asked the plaintiff if she meant to say that Dr. Peck knew Mr. Scheftels and his associates. Her answer was indirect. She supposed he must have known they were all right.

"In your bill of particulars you specified that these alleged promises were made between the hours of 7 and 10 p. m., did you not?"

"Yes."

"Did the doctor request you to marry him nearer 7 o'clock or 10 o'clock, or was it about half way between?"

"You're not entitled to cross-examine this witness on that now," objected Mr. O'Reilly.

"On the evening of February 10, 1910, about 10 p. m., can you tell me where you were?"

This question went unanswered.

"Your nickname or pet name was what?"

"Well, Dr. Peck called me 'Tessie.'"

"Nobody else called you that?"

"No; nobody but Dr. Peck. He called me that one evening and seemed to think it was just right for me."

It appeared that she was called Nettie at home.

"Were you called anything else?"

"Well, when we were growing up I suppose the others may not have formed their words very well in their tender years."

"Wasn't there another pet name, such as Annie or Nan?"

"No; I was never called anything of the sort. Not in my family or elsewhere."

Guessing at Her Age.

"Now, I've asked you how old you are, and you have said about thirty-four. Now, can you strike it nearer than that?"

"No."

"As a matter of fact, aren't you between forty and forty-five?"

Miss Quinn made answer by convulsive giggles.

"Will you swear you are not forty-five?"

"Impossible!"

"Aren't you as old as forty?"

"Impossible!"

"Aren't you as old as thirty-nine?"

Witness and counsel got together on the thirty-nine-year line and held Mr. Francis for downs.

"I am about thirty-four," declared Miss Quinn.

Mr. Francis took up the matter of the plaintiff's birthplace; but she hadn't found out since the previous hearing.

"Do you mean to say you are willing to go to this trial and say that you don't know what part of the State of Massachusetts you were born in?"

Mr. O'Reilly interfered.

The hearing was adjourned until Friday, October 21 at 10:30 a. m.

WEBBER ALIENATION SUIT IS POSTPONED

The $25,000 alienation action of Mrs. George H. Webber against Mrs. Sarah A. Benson, aunt of Mrs. Webber's husband, was postponed for one week to-day just after the jury had been chosen following the opening of the case before Judge Sheehan in the Dedham court. Judge Sheehan adjourned court for one week because he was suffering from rheumatism.

MOTHER SAVES "FAMILY" PLAY FROM FAILURE

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

What a bitter season it would be for erring humanity if it were not for our dear stage mothers, whose arms are always wide open to their wayward children. The new dramatist of the homespun stage doesn't give much attention to father, if you can believe all you saw at the Globe Theatre last evening.

"The Family" dumped its heaviest burdens upon mother, who seemed amply able to take care of herself and household, while the indolent husband and shiftless son swapped horse talk in the dining room and the fair-haired daughter took a fling at high life by eloping with a minstrel man. Yes, siree, John Sneed's family was carving interesting personal history in Alvatown, Mass., wherever that is. To be exact, Alvatown is somewhere between Haverhill and Springfield, and near Brockton, for those communities were frequently mentioned during the unwinding of the play.

Miss Bert's Good Work.

Throughout the movement of the play which never ventured far from dramatic conventions, mother bore herself like a real woman, which increased your respect for Miss Mabel Bert, whose manner of acting made the silver in her hair a badge of true courage and fidelity to the little home that needed her restraining influence to keep it together. Miss Bert was a mother to be loved, which is more than you could say for either father or son.

If Sam Edwards had not given father John Sneed so much bodily bulk you would have called him a shallow parent, and John Westley, who "slanged" himself through the four acts, did not intercept your serious attention until he learned that his sister Madeline was not married to the minstrel man. My goodness, how that boy raved, and yearned for the gore of the man who betrayed his sister. There were turbulent scenes in that Springfield hotel when Mr. Westley took his high flight. For five minutes he was a male Leslie Carter, with mother festooned about his neck in a vain endeavor to save the adjoining property. It was the noisiest afternoon Springfield has had since the late strong-armed Democratic convention.

Miss Herne Helps the Play.

Miss Julie Herne gave the daughter the benefit of splendid acting. Stifled by the cramped, narrow limits of Alvatown, and longing for an opportunity to escape the drudgery of mending socks for indolent father and shiftless brother, there seemed a reasonable excuse for her folly. Anything to get out of that shrivelled community, was her cry.

"The mother is the heart of the family," you were told last night, and it rang true because Miss Bert was never out of touch with her role. She breathed an essence of humanity that was felt across the footlights. You knew that the unhappy, penitent Madeline was safe in her hands, but you had serious doubts about father.

Thomas Meighan played the minstrel man like a charter member of the Amalgamated Association of Home Wreckers, and you wondered not that Madeline was easy prey.

"The Family" made a distinct appeal. Its simplicity carried you back to the days when mother tucked you into bed and stood by while you repeated your evening prayer. Even father, who didn't do much but talk, looked natural in the little sitting room. But Brother David was impossible up to the time of the Springfield excitement, when reform set in and he settled down to regeneration and work in Cohen's clothing store.

There were glad tidings all around when the news reached Alvatown that the Springfield local was wrecked near Hartford and that the minstrel troupe was scattered along the tracks. Paul Churchill, the home wrecker, died on his way to the hospital, so the newspaper story ran, which is one of the first cases on record of satisfactory service on the New Haven road.

"The Family" presented a new view of small town life—a view that warmed your heart with the sweet simplicity of enduring mother love.

COL. MERRILL ARRESTED ON ARSON CHARGE

LEBANON, N. H., Oct. 19.—Colonel Winthrop M. Merrill of Boston, lawyer, tourist, sportsman, financier, son of the late Moody Merrill of Boston, and assistant inspector of rifle practice on the staff of Ex-Governor William L. Douglas of Massachusetts, is out on bail, charged with arson.

The arrest is the result of an indictment returned at the September sitting of the Grand Jury for Grafton County at Woodsville charging the alleged burning of the buildings of his wife, Mrs. Esther M. Merrill.

The buildings, which were burned about midnight early in March last, consisted of a small house and other farm buildings on Beech hill in the town of Campton, about two miles from Plymouth. The house was insured for $2,000 in favor of Mrs. Merrill and the furnishings were covered by $1,000 insurance, payable to Colonel and Mrs. Merrill. The buildings were on the site of the old home of the late Honorable Moody Merrill of Boston and were practically new. The Merrills had been Summer residents at Campton for several years.

After Colonel Merrill was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Stearns, he was taken to the latter's home until his friends were communicated with in Plymouth. Bail Commissioner Alvin Burleigh of Plymouth fixed bail at $2,000, which was furnished by Major F. W. Russell of Plymouth and W. M. Pepperell, a druggist, also of Plymouth.

Colonel Merrill talked freely about his arrest, characterizing it as a case of "spite." He said that his arrest had been anticipated by him, as he had had several talks with representatives of the companies in which his wife's property was insured during the past few months. He also took occasion to vehemently deny the allegation, stating that on the night of the fire he was in New York and had been in that city for six days previous to the breaking out of the flames.

TAFT ASKS GAYNOR TO A STATE DINNER

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—President Taft has invited Mayor and Mrs. Gaynor to spend Sunday at the White House in Washington. The President is to give a dinner Saturday evening to the Mayor of Tokio, and Mr. Gaynor will be present at it. He and Mrs. Gaynor will be the guests of President and Mrs. Taft, and probably won't come back to New York until Monday morning.

380,000 ACRES ARE WITHDRAWN BY TAFT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—By order of President Taft more than 380,000 acres of land supposed to contain valuable deposits of coal have been withdrawn from entry. The land is situated as follows: California, 239,061 acres; Colorado, 112,781 acres; Wyoming, 30,300 acres.

LEGISLATURE, SAYS COURT, CAN FIX LOAN RATE

The full bench of the Supreme Court to-day handed down a decision that the Legislature of Massachusetts, in the exercise of police power, has a constitutional right to regulate the rate of interest on small loans given without security. The question arose in the case of F. O. Dewey against F. D. Richardson, in which Dewey sought to enforce the payment of two notes for $38 given by Richardson, who had agreed to pay more than 12 per cent.

Chief Justice Knowlton, who wrote the opinion, said: "The Legislature evidently had in mind that such a business if left without legislation, would be conducted oppressively, and the statute was enacted with a view to furnish a degree of protection to borrowers. Similar provisions have been enacted in regard to conducting the business of making loans secured by mortgage, or pledge of household furniture, or other personal property exempt from attachment for less than $200 at a rate of interest greater than 12 per cent.

"If there are dangers of oppression in carrying on a business of this kind, the Legislature, in the exercise of the police power, may regulate it by statute in the interest of the people who may be liable to such oppression." The court ordered a verdict for the defendant.

DEATH CURVE WAS APPROVED SAYS BOSTON!

In a formal statement the Boston Elevated Company declares that the board of Railroad Commissioners approved the sharp "S" curve in its tracks on the Charles street approach to the Cambridge bridge, where the fatal accident occurred Saturday evening.

It further states that existing trains over the bridge and its approaches are permitted to a location west of the Cambridge Junction, application for which was heard by Railroad Commissioners Hall and Morse on the 10th instant, grant of which on the 12th instant has not yet been made known to the company, but which, it is understood, will be made immediately, and that trains under its authority have been operated until April 11, 1911.

Also, according to the statement, the Bridge Commissioners granted the location without knowing where the tracks on the approach to the bridge were to be laid, but that some shifting of the existing sharp curve were to be necessary before the road could be completed and final approval, hereby obtained, by the company was the statement of Mayor Fitzgerald's board of Railroad Commissioners, that the curve at the location grant for the approach to the bridge was approved by the board when complied with.

President Bancroft's Letter.

In addition to the above, President Bancroft of the company sent a letter to Mr. Nitzgerald with reference to establishing an independent fare in which he said:

"The Boston Elevated Company paid out last year on account of persons injured in connection with its operation, the sum of $250,000. Nobody has ever provided that this large amount should be paid by the company. It is well known that the company's payments not only cover many cases where no liability exists, but in many others, have been made liberal. They are usually settled for the least amount obtainable, rather than $125,000 a year, the expense privilege of the use of the streets and other privileges which it enjoys, particularly $1,150,000 in taxes, these taxes, like the compulsory reduction of fares to help buildings, for purposes such as free parks, free hospitals and museums, are not."

"We Accept Responsibilities."

"We accept such of you suggest, if it is considerate enough to be efficient, sound in a duplication of the public service.

"We feel that what we are doing should be done, that it is necessary and economical, that it is honest, and that everything in our power to perform the duties of the authorities. We are not, however, in favor of needless expenditures, and we shall oppose them."

AVIATOR SAVES CHILDREN'S LIVES

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—By far the most sensational aeroplane flight that has been made in this country, in the judgment of the International Aviation meeting, Saturday, was made by John B. Moisant, the American aviator of Parisian-London fame, when he swooped down from a height of 1,000 feet and, in a manner that would seem to make a fatal accident with a party of children on the ground inevitable, landed his machine in the short space of the track just as the athletes were coming down the stretch preparatory to athletes. Perceiving the danger, Moisant opened the throttle wide and was able to jump over the frightened group.

PAULINE CHASE TO BE BRIDE OF GRAHAME-WHITE

Claude Grahame-White, the handsome young English aviator, who took about $20,000 of Hearst's money in the recent Harvard-Boston aviation meet at Atlantic, is to marry Pauline Chase, the "Pink Pajama" girl, according to advices received in Boston to-day. The announcement of the engagement is made by Charles Frohman, under whose direction Miss Chase is acting.

The announcement puts an end to rumors that Miss Chase, the most photographed beauty in England, was to marry James M. Barrie, the playwright, whose youngest daughter she is. It was reported after Mr. Barrie's divorce from his actress wife that he was to marry his protegee, though he denied it at the time.

Mr. Frohman said that the marriage would be celebrated in the Spring or the other side.

Miss Chase and Mr. Grahame-White have been friends for nine years, having met in London when Miss Chase first went there as a member of one of the Edna May companies.

Mr. Grahame-White does not intend to allow his engagement to interfere with his air flights, and is all the more determined to capture some of the great prizes offered for the coming meet at Belmont park. Miss Chase declares that she will be present to see his success every time he goes up.

"Polly" on that fame came when she was in the Liberty Belles company in this city and rolled out of bed in pink pajamas, which she wore in the burlesque work later, however, when Mr. Barrie selected her as the perfect "Peter Pan" for the star of his English Peter Pan company.

The members of the company were the first to hear of the engagement and they crowded about the actress and the aviator and showered them with congratulations.

Miss Chase and Mr. Grahame-White hurried away in a taxicab as soon as possible. When hailed at the door of the one the flyer laughed, come an hour to breakfast at 11 o'clock, if you please, and begged [illegible] so I say, old chap, [illegible] you know. Oh yes, I'll [illegible] is true, and I'm very glad, too."

"And say that for me also!" chimed in Miss Chase.

Miss Chase recently made a flight with Grahame-White, but no sentimental significance was attached to it at the time.

YOUR UPSET, SOUR, GASSY STOMACH IS RELIEVED IN A FEW MOMENTS

Every family here ought to keep some Diapepsin in the house, as any one of you may have an attack of indigestion, or Stomach trouble at any time, day or night.

This harmless preparation will digest anything you eat and overcome a distressed, out-of-order stomach five minutes afterwards.

If your meals don't tempt you, or what little you do eat seems to fill you, or lays like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is a sign of indigestion.

Ask your Pharmacist for a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and take a little just as soon as you can. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach. Nausea, Debilitating Headaches, Dizziness or intestinal fulness. This will all go, and, besides, there will be no sour food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapepsin is a certain cure for out-of-order stomachs, because it prevents fermentation and takes hold of your food and digests it just the same as if your stomach wasn't there.

Relief in five minutes from all stomach misery is at any druggists, waiting for you.

These large 50-cent cases contain more than sufficient to cure almost any chronic case of Dyspepsia, Indigestion or any other Stomach trouble.

BREAKING OUT ALL OVER BODY

Itched Dreadfully. When Scratched It would Bleed and Become Very Sore. Could Scarcely Sleep as the Itching was Worse at Night. Dreaded Putting Hands in Water.

Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment 3 Weeks. Trouble all Disappeared.

"Some time ago I had a breaking out all over my body. It first started like what we call goose flesh and itched dreadfully. When I scratched it, it would bleed and become very sore. I tried almost everything for the itching but each one gave me much relief. I could scarcely sleep as the itching was always worse at night. My hands were so sore I dreaded putting them in water and after I would wash dishes or do laundry work that required the use of other soaps they were always worse. This went on for about six months. Then I used Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, and in two or three weeks the trouble all disappeared. I always found that my hands were worse (with a dry scale on them) after using any cheap soap but the Cuticura Soap produced such a soothing feeling on my skin that it was a pleasure to use it. I take much pleasure in what the Cuticura Remedies have done for a friend of mine, so I would recommend them to any one." (Signed) Miss. # GOODBYE MESSAGE OF CARDINAL VANNUTELLI TO AMERICAN PEOPLE

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Before sailing for Rome on the North German Lloyd liner Kronprinzessin Cecilie, Cardinal Vannutelli, who was the Papal delegate to the Eucharistic Conference recently held in Montreal, issued this farewell statement:

By CARDINAL VANNUTELLI.

I VENTURE to say that no stranger has ever left your hospitable shores with more vivid and lasting impressions of the pressing greatness and promising future of this magnificent country. The opportunity afforded me of visiting you came through my official mission to Canada, where I recently represented Pope Pius X. at the Eucharistic Congress in Montreal. His Holiness, ever longing to know more about the United States and the condition of the Catholic church here, was desirous that I should also pay a visit to the States. I must admit that having heard so much of your country, its vast area, its millions of inhabitants, its prosperity, its resources, its opportunities for the immigrant, and the progress of the church, that I rejoiced to know that I was soon to witness with my own eyes this wonderful land. I am now departing, willing to testify that the reality surpasses my most sanguine anticipation.

I have found here a republic that is one in reality, not merely in name like most of the republics of Europe. It has been most refreshing and inspiring to come in touch with the spirit of Christian justice and charity that influenced the founders of your institutions, at present dominates their development, and predestines, I am confident, their glorious future. Within a few weeks I have traveled through the large cities of the West and East; and everywhere I witnessed the greatest possible reverence for religion and respect for authority—both now rapidly lacking in some of the old countries of Europe. The permanency of your republic is assured if recognition of God and obedience to authority continue to exercise their benign influence on American life.

Naturally I was especially concerned with the progress of the Catholic Church in the United States. The evidences I have seen of the marvelous growth of the church in this country have impressed me most profoundly. Here, unhampered by hostile legislation and free to work out her mission, the church, an infant in years, shows all the vitality and strength of a giant. I am convinced that the church is contributing, in a large measure, to the upbuilding of the nation; and if she continues to enjoy the liberty she now possesses, she will do still greater things in the future for the welfare of the country; her influence makes for upright citizenship and the stability of government.

I know that your extraordinary material wealth and prosperity have a tendency to deaden the finer feelings of the soul and the higher instincts of the mind; because commercialism is by its very nature apt to be baneful to its influence on culture. Yet I could not avoid observing the evidence of your deep interest in religion, art and learning, as evidenced in your monumental buildings, your museums, your libraries, your beautiful churches, both Protestant and Catholic.

I shall certainly tell the Holy Father of the warm welcome I received on all sides, from non-Catholic as well as Catholic; and I shall bear in grateful memory, during the remainder of my life, the days, all too short, that I spent among you.

SCHOOL CITY PLAN LAUDED AT CITY CLUB

The school city plan contains a principle which no schoolmaster can afford to ignore. A school which does not in some way embody the principle in its practice is probably not filling its proper function in the community. Good schools, to my mind, do carry out the principle, consciously or unconsciously. Many schools need very little formal pupil organization. I have in mind a certain girl's grammar school in Boston, where the conditions are so perfect, the discipline so easy and natural, and the whole atmosphere so sweet and serene, that an organization of officers, courts and officials would be foreign and offensive.—Frank L. Thurston to Boston City Club.

HALL HEADS PRISON NINE

John A. Hall, former treasurer of the town of Southbridge, now in the Charlestown State Prison for wrecking the Southbridge Savings Bank, has been elected captain of the prison baseball team. This became known to-day after the Southbridge local officials had visited Hall at the prison.

The visitors reported that Hall was cheerful and appeared to be in the best of health. Hall himself told them that he had lost twenty-three pounds in weight, but he looks well and weighs 190 pounds now.

Hall was at work in the knitting mill, making stockings. He informed his visitors that he was soon to teach bookkeeping to the other prisoners. "I do teach it," said Hall, "it won't be the same that I employed at the Southbridge Bank."

The former bank official goes to work at 8:30 o'clock in the morning. His working day lasts until 4:30 in the afternoon, and he has one hour for dinner.

A NEW ECZEMA REMEDY

The new compound Cadum has astonished those who used it. Many cases of seeding and other distressing skin diseases are reported and the remarkable thing in most cases is the quickness of the cure. Eczema is not a blood disease, but a skin affection. It cannot be cured by internal medicines. External treatment is absolutely necessary. Since the introduction of Cadum, eczema is now recognized as a curable disease, and that tormenting affliction has been robbed of its terrors. Cadum alays the itching and begins the healing process after it is applied. It is also a pimple-killer. Blotches, blisters, pores, scaly acne, herpes, scaly skin rash, chafings, irritations, sores, and itching piles, etc. 25c and 25c a box.

UXBRIDGE OXEN CAUSE PROTEST

UXBRIDGE, Oct. 19.—Town Clerk George T. Hobbs has grave doubts that a yoke of oxen will make a speedy enough hitch over the hook and ladder truck. The town clerk fears a fire would gain headway before the oxen could gallop to the scene. He is strong for a pair of horses, saying:

"The town might make arrangements with some man to furnish a team of horses for the department. The town to pay a certain sum every time the horses were called out. The town could buy a bond to cover any injury to the horses in case of accident. It would be good business policy, however, for the town to buy a pair of horses, which could be used on town work when not going to fires."

The objections of the town clerk to the oxen rise from the statement that Fire Chief Thomas F. Malley had hired a yoke of oxen to coax the ton and a-half ladder truck to fires.

ROSSA, NOTED OLD FENIAN CHIEF, DYING

YORK, Oct. 19.—O'Donovan Rossa, for a half century in the struggle for Ireland's freedom, chief leader of the Fenians, is in seriously ill at his home at New Brighton, L. I., that there is little hope for his recovery. He is almost 68 years old, and his physical organization has broken down under the strain of years and hardships, but his spirit is as strong as ever.

Fifty-five years ago Rossa joined the Young Ireland movement. His mother, brothers and sisters endorsed it wholeheartedly, and he was ever a devoted believer. In the '60s he was a leader in the agitation, movement sweeping over the country and tended by the Fenian brotherhood.

In 1858 he was outlawed from his native land, and in 1863 Rossa, with his brother Jeremiah, came to New York to visit. He returned to Ireland to assist in the movement and was arrested.

From prison in 1871 Rossa was in hail. The bondsmen refused much more than ordinary security, and he was released on condition that he stay hereafter in Great Britain and Ireland. He refused to give the required promise of good behavior, and was remanded to prison. He was released in 1874, and soon after that he returned to New York. He was elected to the County Council at a comfortable salary. Queen Victoria, at the request of high public favors, granted Rossa a full pardon, and he was free to live in his native land.

But his long residence in New York had changed him and Ireland was changed also. The atmosphere of exile was not congenial to the old firebrand, and he returned to New York.

TAILOR WANTS CUDAHY TO PAY

It is worth $100 to hold a "steady" suitable for a Chicago pork packer's son to be educated be at Harvard College, according to information from the Windy City.

"Whitecoat—$100," is one of the items on a bill for $350 which F. L. Dennis & Co., fashionable tailors at No. 328 Washington street, Boston, are trying to collect from young "Jack" Cudahy of the house of Cudahy.

The whole bill is for college togs turned made for young Cudahy in the Harvard days six years and seven years ago. The items are:

| | |
|---|---|
| Four suits at $80 | $320 |
| Two suits at $25 | 50 |
| Overcoat | 100 |
| Waistcoat | 15 |
| Total | $350 |

Dispatches from Chicago say that this bill has been put in the hands of a Chicago collection agency. There seems to be a question whether the young man or his father owes the money to the Boston tailoring concern. Young Cudahy contracted the bill, but is now of age.

BOY "TRAVELLER KING" ARRESTED

Fourteen-year-old John Ochs of No. 114 High street, Charlestown, known as the "King of youthful travelers," is again in the custody of the police. This time it is in Baltimore, where the echo of that city found him surrounded by a crowd of men and boys.

FLEEING PAIR WED IN AUTO

CHARLOTTE, Mich., Oct. 25.—Married in a motor car running at a speed of fifty miles an hour over country roads between here and Lansing, with another auto in pursuit, is the novel experience of Miss Marie Tolgett and Harrison Blakeslee, young people of this city. The wedding was to take place at the bride's home, but at the last hour a desperate step was taken to evade rice and old shoes. The pursuing auto was loaded with disappointed

DISTILLER IS SLAIN.

JACKSON, Oct. 18.—Matt Crawford, a distiller and nephew of the late Judge James Hargis, was shot to death by assassins at his distillery near Jackson. His body was found today riddled with bullets. A pistol was laying at his side.

GIRL WHO RECEIVES MEDAL FOR SAVING LIFE OF WOMAN

MISS BEATRICE SHIELDS.

GIRL HONORED FOR HEROISM

Miss Beatrice Shields of No. 135 Boylston street, Jamaica Plain, was presented with a medal by the Massachusetts Humane Society by Mayor Fitzgerald's office in City Hall today, for her heroism in saving the life of Mrs. J. C. Cooke, whom she rescued from drowning at Dover.

Miss Shields, who is but fourteen years old, was canoeing on the Charles river with Cooke, when the latter beat over, plied a good fifty and capsized the frail craft. The brave girl caught the woman as she rose to the surface and swam with her.

Miss Shields is an expert swimmer, but considering the swift current and courage under the circumstances was remarkable.

WIFE TAKES POISON AFTER QUARREL

Mrs. Julia G. Bragg, twenty-one years old, of No. 2 Oakland place, Brighton, attempted suicide yesterday afternoon by taking poison. She is now in the City hospital, and is said to be dangerously ill.

Mrs. Bragg, according to her husband, had a quarrel with him over differences in a household matter, and left the house. Soon after she was found by Gottlieb Gehrig, a neighbor, in the rear of his barn. She was unconscious when found.

Gehrig ran to the house and told Mrs. Bragg's husband, who was in the cellar. He immediately called the police station and an ambulance was sent from the Dorchester station and the woman was removed to the Homeopathic hospital. The physicians say her condition is serious. The bottle had contained laudanum.

BIG DISPLAY OF SHIRTS NEXT WEEK

Twice a year, once in the Spring and once in the Fall, the makers of the Cluett shirts arrange with the dealers in men's furnishing goods throughout the United States to make exhibitions in their windows of the season's very latest creations. This Autumn Cluett week falls on October 24-29. During next week the dealers in Boston will make attractive displays in their windows, showing the very latest creations of the famous and popular Cluett shirts and combinations will be revealed in both pleated and plain bosoms, together with the new French, or turn-back cuffs.

THIS DEER HAD 50 PRONGS TO ANTLERS

BANGOR, Me., Oct. 19.—S. L. Crosby a taxidermist, is mounting a "world beater" in the way of a deer head from a buck killed by Hull Wood, of Grand Lake Stream. The head has antlers with fifty prongs, the largest number ever seen on red or cotton tail Virginia deer in the world. The largest previous set of antlers recorded had thirty-three prongs.

HALE STATUE FUND.

The Edward Everett Hale Statue Fund now amounts to $9,850.00. This amount is acknowledged in a statement issued by Kidder, Peabody & Co., treasurers of the fund, to-day.

APARTMENT HOUSES FOR BACK BAY

Two lots of Albert W. Nickerson have sold about 10,000 square feet of land at No. 25 Peterborough street, near the Parkway, Back Bay, to Abraham Ember and H. Altman of Boston, who intend at once to build an attractive apartment house, consisting of thirty suites of three to five rooms and bath, from plans of F. A. Norcross. The sale is significant, inasmuch as it is the first lease of this character to be built in the neighborhood. The lease was negotiated by John C. Kiley and the others by Joseph Balch.

In the North End the brick house and 781 square feet of land at No. 50 Snow Hill street, near Hull street, all rated for $5,700, have been sold by Maurice Cutable to Michele Di Gregorio. The land is rated for $1,900.

Through the office of Guy H. Tobey of the Exchange building the store and basement at No. 117 Massachusetts avenue, the Hotel Dudquoine building, corner of Boylston street and Massachusetts avenue, has been leased for a term of years to the G. R. & H. J. Hadlich Company, agents for the Hadlich piano, formerly at No. 229 Berkeley street, who will occupy the extensive premises.

Noble L. Rodney has sold to Hiram Stetson, this passing through Wm. W. Curtis, the factory property and land and 2,651 square feet of land at No. 22 Rhodes court, near Purchase street, rated for $19,000, at which $1,500 is in the land.

Raymond P. Dewing has sold for the William R. Cook estate to Myron L. Pike the 12-room single house and 7,000 feet of land, containing 10,475 square feet, all taxed for $8,200, at 12 Hamilton street, corner of Mt. Everett street, Dorchester. The purchase money was supplied by the representatives of the Masonic fraternity, for which it will be a handsome grounds. The land is rated at $2,000.

Henrietta P. Fitzgerald has sold to Nellie Grey the frame house and 4,351 square feet of land at No. 477 Magnolia street, corner of Enrose Terrace, Dorchester, all assessed for $3,000, of which $1,700 is in the land.

The new frame house, not yet taxed, and 6725 square feet of land rated for $1,500, at the corner of Norton and Leeds streets, Dorchester, have been purchased by James H. Ryan et al. from Fred N. Russell.

In Brighton the frame house and 5,194 square feet of land at No. 280-286 Cambridge street, corner of Harvard street, rated for $12,500, have been sold by Hannah K. Hosier to Robert G. Jones. The latter bought for $7,800.

The John P. Wenner estate has sold to Nathan Abrahamson the Wilton, a brick apartment house, and 2,323 square feet of land at No. 7 Wilton street, Brighton, all assessed for $6,500, of which $1,800 is on the land.

In East Boston the four-story brick house and 1,645 square feet of land at No. 45 Chelsea street, corner of Cross street, all taxed for $9,700, have been sold by Annie Reynolds to Frank Chilelli, trustee, et al.

Maria Linn has sold to Gottlieb Gehrig the frame house and 3,320 square feet of land at Nos. 7-9 Belmont terrace, near Oakview terrace, West Roxbury, all taxed for $6,600. Mr. Gehrig utilizes present holdings of the new owner.

Frank Cahill has sold the frame house and 5,570 square feet of land at No. 39 Temple street, corner of Hillcrest street, all assessed for $3,100. The purchase is leased to William G. Barrows from Louisa M. Bryant.

TECH FLYER UNHURT IN WRECK OF GLIDER

LOWELL, Oct. 19.—H. J. Leyman, president of the Technology Aviation club, escaped unhurt but his glider was wrecked when the contrivance ran into a tree while twenty feet from the ground. The accident occurred during the aeronautic demonstration at the Vesper Country Club grounds, where the Technology Merrimac Valley Alumni Association was holding an outing. Professor Rotch of Harvard and Congressman Ames spoke at the banquet.

PROMINENT ROXBURY YOUNG WOMAN WEDS

Miss Theresa Burke, a young woman prominent in the Mt. Pleasant section of Roxbury, was married to James W. Allen, a civil engineer in the employ of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, at 9 o'clock this morning in St. Patrick's church, Dudley street, today. Miss Agnes Burke, a sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and John Allen, best man. Breakfast followed at the bride's home, No. 20 Clarkson street. A short honeymoon trip will be spent, after which the couple will live at No. 98 Harvard street, Dorchester.

ROXBURY MAN HELD ON TWO CHARGES

John F. Holt, twenty-one, of Hucklins street, Roxbury, faced charges of manslaughter and attempt to assault in the Roxbury District court today. Holt was accused of causing the death of Sable Singleton, colored baby, of Shawmut avenue, and of attempting to attack Margaret McNeil, a waitress, of Shawmut avenue, Roxbury. Holt pleaded not guilty to both charges. Both cases were continued until October 26.

What the Boston Elevated Has Done for Rapid Transit

Extensions and Additions, Subway, Elevated and Surface, Which It has Provided

MAP NO. 7 UNDER CONSTRUCTION

From map of Boston Suburbs, Copyright, Geo. H. Walker & Co., Walker Lith. & Pub. Co.

The Boston Elevated Railway Company is showing the additions and extensions which it has made to its system.

On September 28 was shown the surface lines and the Tremont Street Subway as in January, 1898. This was when the Boston Elevated took charge. On October 3 there was shown in addition the original Elevated system. On October 5 the East Boston Tunnel. On October 10 the Washington Street Tunnel. On October 13 the Forest Hills Elevated Extension. On Oct. 17 East Cambridge Elevated Extension.

To the above is now added the

Cambridge Subway and Beacon Hill Tunnel Shown thus

Cambridge has a population of one hundred and five thousand. Its area is about 6.53 sq. miles. Its taxable value is one hundred and seven million dollars.

The Cambridge subway, Beacon Hill tunnel and connections will cost equipped TWELVE MILLION DOLLARS.

The entire taxable value of Cambridge is ONLY NINE TIMES the cost of this work.

This subway is IN ADDITION to all surface lines, and also IN ADDITION to the East Cambridge extension now building.

Such a tremendous expenditure required the GREATEST CAUTION in the selection of the route.

The terminal will be an additional one under the present Park Street Station.

Surface cars at the Harvard Square terminal will enter the subway and will meet trains at train level.

Something new in car operation will be introduced at this point.

Arlington and North Cambridge cars will run to the Harvard Square terminal. Instead of reversing, they will continue to Belmont, Waverly, Watertown or Newton.

In like manner cars from these last named places will run to the terminal and then proceed to North Cambridge or Arlington.

FREE TRANSFER without checks will be established at this terminal.

The running time from Harvard Square and Park Street is now TWENTY-FIVE MINUTES. By this subway it WILL be about EIGHT MINUTES.

From the Cambridge subway cars will run over the beautiful new Cambridge bridge; a considerable portion of which was paid for by the Elevated Company.

From the bridge, they will proceed over a viaduct to the Beacon Hill tunnel.

Thence by the tunnel to the Park Street Station.

This subway was commenced August 12th, 1909. It is rapidly nearing completion.

WELLMAN'S OWN STORY OF 1000-MILE FLIGHT OVER THE ATLANTIC

AVIATORS NEARLY DROWNED IN THRILLING RESCUE FROM GREAT BALLOON'S LIFEBOAT.

Fortunately, this was unnecessary. The Trent passed the lifeboat dangerously near her.

Rope was thrown and caught by the men who, however, could not hold on, owing to the rough sea. Trent cleared the lifeboat, then dropped half a mile astern. As the big steamer turned in her wake to return to the lifeboat it was seen that the airship men had gotten out two oars and were struggling to keep her head up to the sea. She was now alongside the craft again. Lines were thrown, but were dragged from the airship men's hands in hanging to the rope. Mr. Wellman's little finger was badly cut. The manoeuvre was repeated, this time with success, with Loud, Simon and Irwin straining on the two oars. A small line was gotten close enough to seize and make fast America from steamer Trent. The crew of the America climbed up the rope ladder and each one was loudly cheered, as he was helped over the rail.

So ended the most thrilling and daring deed in the annals of the sea.

L. GINEBERG.

Wellman Will Try Again.

That Wellman is planning to head another trans-Atlantic expedition is indicated by the story which is published in the New York Times to-day; sent by him by wireless from the Trent.

The dirigible balloon on which he will try the flight will, however, be constructed along lines different from those of the America, the fate of which is in doubt to-day. It is not known whether it is still drifting on the surface of the sea, or has been dashed on land by the storm raging along the Southern coast.

Wellman declares that another balloon will probably be built, although it will have to be much larger and more powerful than the 228-foot America and minus the equilibrator which caused all the trouble by wrecking the frame.

Wellman says that the heavy equilibrator, retarding and dragging down the ship and interfering with its steering, was the fatal mistake of the campaign. He says, however, that the America covered 1,000 miles over rough seas and that the experience has taught a lesson which will be most important in making further plans for trans-Atlantic flight. Wellman not only exceeded the old record for the length of time aloft, but covered more distance than any other man. It is not believed, however, that this has broken a record for non-dirigible balloon, which is 1,112 miles.

WELLMAN TELLS OF DANGERS IN HIS 71 HOUR FLIGHT

Walter Wellman gives the following account of his attempt to cross the ocean in the airship America, and of his rescue by the steamship Trent, in a copyrighted article appearing in the New York Times of today's issue:

By WALTER WELLMAN.

ON BOARD THE ROYAL MAIL SS. TRENT, AT SEA, Oct. 18.—All my brave and loyal crew of the dirigible balloon America are safe from the crippled balloon this morning and taken on the ship at 7 o'clock, after two hours' of difficult manoeuvering.

At Nantucket on Sunday morning, as was reported at the time, conditions seemed favorable for the completion of the journey across the Atlantic. It was after we had gone well past that point that the conditions arose which finally forced the abandoning of the airship and the transfer of the men to the Trent.

After passing Nantucket Island we went east northeast for an estimated distance of 140 miles. Our motors were not in use, as the fresh westerly breeze we had at Nantucket was still driving us forward. Our only anxiety, as I said in my message at the time, lay in the acting of the equilibrator, which had begun to jerk on the ship as it jumped over the waves. We journeyed before the westerly breeze all the afternoon.

Wind Baffled Plans.

At 9 on Sunday night our approximate position was latitude 42 degrees north and longitude 42 west. Here came the serious change in the wind. It shifted into the northwest and freshened to about thirty miles an hour and before it the America drifted at the rate of about twenty-five miles an hour.

It was impossible for us in these conditions to continue on our northeasterly course, which would have kept us in the lane of the European liners.

Furthermore, the equilibrator was pulling hard. As the lower end of it rode the heavy seas, which had been kicked up by the stiff breeze, it jerked shockingly on the lines which held it to the America.

Under this stress, the ship set up a rolling motion, which added to the strain and threatened the entire destruction of the craft. It was a dreadful night for the men aboard the ship. There was much to be done to ease the strain, and all did everything possible.

At times some would become exhausted, and one by one the men would sleep for a time. They went to their hammocks expecting that they would wake to find themselves in the ocean, but all they wanted was to sleep, and they did so. At the worst moments they were calm and even cheerful.

Voted to Stick to Airship.

As the seas grew in power and pulled harder on the equilibrator, the America was driven down almost to the level of the line of whitecaps. Some of the waves even struck the lifeboat, in which lay our only hope of saving ourselves, and threatened at times to carry it away.

At this point a consultation was held to decide whether we should abandon the ship and take to the lifeboat. All hands agreed that we should stick to the ship and try to take her to land and, if possible, on the other side of the ocean. We threw over gasoline to lighten her, and she rose above the dangerous waves.

At 3 on Monday morning orders were given to change the course in the hope of reaching the Azores or Europe, which was possible even yet. If the winds should hold favorable.

Then came another disastrous shift of the wind. It hauled entirely out of the west, and came to us from the northeast, blowing strong. It would have been impossible to make the Azores in the face of this wind, in view of our sacrifice of a large part of our gasoline supply.

It was then decided that we should try to make Bermuda. The motors were shut off again, and we drifted southwest at about fifteen miles an hour. Our purpose in drifting was to save the motor gasoline for the final effort to reach a landing place.

Saw Task Was Hopeless.

All Monday we kept afloat with difficulty, there was grave danger and a great strain on all, but none thought of giving up. We were prepared to do our best for as long as possible and to give up only when we saw that the task was hopeless.

A fresh trouble came on Monday night. The weather turned cold, and the change of temperature so affected the lifting power of the gas—by contraction—that it was found it necessary to jettison more of the gasoline and part of the machinery, which had been designed, in order to keep above the waves.

We saw that it would be impossible to keep afloat another night under such conditions, but resolved to stick to the ship during the day unless we should meet a vessel. There was a doubt whether this was wise, as there was great danger that the equilibrator with its constant jerking would pull us apart and we would founder.

Life Boat Almost Wrecked.

The lifeboat was finally launched with great difficulty in a high wind early this morning. We had sighted the Trent coming toward us, two hours away, and we realized that the only course to take under the circumstances was to launch the boat then, instead of waiting for the night, when we would have to take to it and no help would be near.

The maneuver was executed cleverly. Vanlman brought the America down close to the sea, and Simon directed the release of the boat.

As he was doing this work the equilibrator threatened to smash the little craft. It was thrashing wildly about under the pressure of the seas, and as the boat came to the water it hit the craft a glancing blow and half capsized.

Simon, however, was cool and resourceful, and kept the boat in control. Soon the crew took to it. Simon was the last to leave the ship. He saw all the others safe in the boat before he himself came down and parted the lines holding the two crafts together.

Airship Disappears.

Relieved of the weight of the lifeboat and the crew the damaged America rose high into the air dragging the equilibrator into the distance.

The loss of the airship was witnessed with little regret by those who had journeyed in her. It was realized that she never could have been used again. Probably a larger and stronger air craft can be built to carry on her task.

The heavy equilibrator, which retarded and dragged down the ship and interfered with the steering, was the fatal mistake of his campaign. The trial with the America, however, was well worth making. We covered 1,000 miles in her over rough seas.

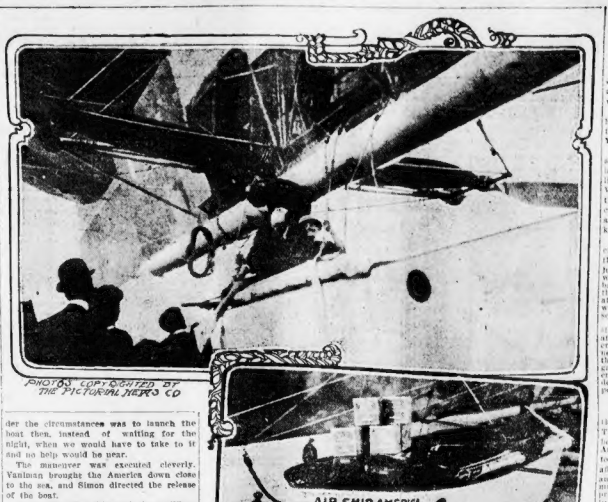
I did not want the America saved, unless for further experiments. I am satisfied that the type will not do for crossing the ocean. The trouble lay in the equilibrator, which would not do what we had expected, and with it we could not keep her course. Everything else was all right, and even with the broken motor we could have gone ahead.

It was 7:05 o'clock this morning when we sighted the lights of a steamship, which afterward proved to be the Trent. Irwin signalled with a lamp by Morse code: "Stand by. We need you."

The Trent answered the signals, and after getting an understanding of our message she changed her course and came towards us. She soon neared us, and in looking down from the America we could see hundreds of people on the deck looking up at us in wonderment.

As the Trent approached us we were 300 feet above the sea, but it was apparent that before we could get hold the airship long. When she came beneath us one of our crew lashed the canvas covering of our car and lowered a line, which the men aboard the Trent endeavored to catch. But as it appeared probable that the line would be caught a gust of wind whirled us away, carrying the line out from the steamer.

Many times the line was lowered and there was a scramble on board the Trent to make it fast. Each time the wind would catch up and push us away. Finally the line was caught and made fast aboard the vessel, but a strong gust of wind parted it and tore us away.



The Trent followed us, but it was evident that this plan would not do. We gave the signal to stand by and pick us up for we would take to the lifeboat. The operation of launching the boat was performed with the greatest skill.

Vanlman brought the airship down close to the water and Simon directed the spring fog of the hooks, which released the rope to drop the boat. He was the last to get aboard the boat and he released the lines which held her free from the America.

As we were getting away, however, the equilibrator, which had done so much to harm, almost put an end to our efforts to leave the ship. Under the impulse of the waves it was lashing about, and as the boat was in the water it struck it a glancing blow that almost smashed the little craft. As it was the boat was half capsized. She was soon right, however, and the oars were manned and we pulled for the Trent, which had kept as close to us as possible.

Ropes were thrown from the steamer and caught by us, and we were soon made fast and were taken aboard. We had a strange greeting, for everybody aboard was impressed with the fact that something more had happened in the rescue of a crew of a dirigible balloon far at sea. Officers, crew and passengers, many of them clad in queer seaof attire, which they had snatched up and put on when they came for the deck at the news that the America had been sighted, crowded around us and greeted us warmly.

Formal entry was made in the book of the purser of the event. Our names were put down on his list as the crew rescued from the airship America.

We had come away from the America with only the clothing we wore and that had been soaked while we were in the lifeboat. Clothing was quickly provided for us, and then we were taken for a meal to which we were needed.

Everything possible was done for us, and the kindness shown among the first moment of the America was liberated from the forward hatchway where it had been locked when we left the airship. It was glad to get aboard the big ship, although it did mean scrambling and falling when attempts were made to make friends.

Lots of people on board took pictures, and the cut figured in many of them. Throughout all the journey which was now ended, the crew of the America had been loyal, brave, heroic.

"FOOLHARDY," SAYS PROFESSOR ROTCH

LOWELL, Oct. 19.—Professor A. Lawrence Rotch of Harvard, head of Blue Hill observatory and an authority on aeronautics, who lectured here before the Massachusetts Institute of Technology Club on his favorite topic, said: "I have always considered this cross Atlantic trip of Wellman's a foolhardy thing. I have never seen his airship and know nothing of it beyond mere printed descriptions. With what power he has, however, it could not have been much more than a drifting journey; he would not have been able to have made progress against any considerable winds. I doubt, too, if his balloon would have stayed up much more than two or three days."

JOBBERS OUSTED BY STEEL TRUST

PITTSBURG, Oct. 19.—In connection with the expected break between the United States Steel Corporation and the jobbers who have handled its products, it is said that not only has the corporation established a warehouse in New York, and shortly completed one in Pittsburg, but that similar structures will be erected in St. Louis, Detroit, Chicago, New Orleans and San Francisco to handle steel products for the territories which those cities feed.

Gossip in steel circles went so far as to say that it is understood the jobbers may establish an independent steel plant in Cleveland to supply their own warehouses.

DRAPER TRIES SKILL ON WAKEFIELD RANGE

WAKEFIELD, Oct. 19.—Governor Draper and Lieutenant-Governor Frothingham, accompanied by the Governor's military staff and some twenty officers of the Massachusetts militia, paid their annual visit to the State rifle range here. Governor Draper shot two strings at both the 200 and 500-yard ranges, but did not get time to finish the score at 500 yards. His score at 200 yards was 17—17, out of a possible 25, for a total of 34; at 500 yards it was 16—17, a total of 33.

COLUMBUS STRIKE IS ENDED BY VOTE

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 19.—The Street Carmen's Union, by a vote of nearly three to one, called off the strike which had been in progress since June 24. The men have received no concessions from the company.

CAPTAIN OF TRENT DESCRIBES SAVING OF CREW AFTER AMERICA WAS ABANDONED.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Late wireless dispatches tell the thrilling story of the rescue of Wellman and his crew a rescue without parallel in history.

The remarkable rescue of Wellman and his crew is told these messages from Captain Dunn of the Trent received in New York to-day:

"On board S. S. Trent, Oct. 18. A ship bean to lose gas after leaving Atlantic City and had to throw more gasoline overboard to keep above the water. When practically all gasoline was gone the America began to drift. The airship crew knew the Trent was due from Cuba and had left Bermuda on Monday. They kept a sharp lookout for the Trent.

"When day saw the Trent's lights the crew's joy was dampened by the thought that they would have to seek assistance just as the airship was about to break the world's record for endurance flight by a balloon. If they could have remained in the air until 8 o'clock, half an hour after they were picked up the Trent's crew would have exploited the world's record of seven days two hours.

"When the America was abandoned she still had enough gas aboard to keep her afloat at least five hours longer. The crew was glad to get aboard the Trent, nevertheless, as they had begun to fear they would never reach home again. Navigator Irwin, of the America, took the official photographs of the airship from the deck of the Trent before the craft disappeared.

Feared Fire Danger.

"But the problem of getting alongside the airship was new in marine tactics. The Trent failed to get close to the airship because of the danger of setting the America's car afire. There was also the danger to her engines and of setting the gasoline afire, and so putting both the steamship and balloon in peril. After the first communications the wireless was found more practical and several times during the night to bend line to airship but couldn't. All that time we were on the America but we could talk easily with Wellman. Communication was accomplished. Finally Wellman decided to take to lifeboat. Life boat was hauled safely to the Trent stood by for that purpose.

"Simon, navigator of the America, was last to leave ship. Before he left he cut the gasoline lines to relieve the America of weight so that on Monday morning she would rise and go away from us. The gas escaping from the bag made a noise like that of a steam engine. On Monday morning the America rose and we found her gone. We had a great difficulty in

AN ABSOLUTE NECESSITY

So Thinks At Least One Traveling Man.

I would as soon think of starting out with out my collar button and grip as to start out on a trip without a box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets in my valise, and a traveling man who appreciates a square meal knows better. Why? Because I have to put up at all kinds of hotels and boarding houses. I have to eat good, bad and indifferent food at all hours of the day and night and I don't believe any man's stomach will stand that sort of thing without protest, anyway I know mine won't. It has to have assistance in the full and timely use of Dyspepsia Tablets is the crutch I fall back on.

My friends often "josh" me about it, tell me I'm an easy mark, that I've been buncoed, that advertised medicines are humbugs, etc., but I notice that they are nearly always complaining of their aches and pains and pale digestion, while I can stand on the platform all day, face and feel good and ready for my work whenever it needs me, and I believe I owe my good digestion and good health to the daily, regular use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, year in and year out, and all the "joshing" in the world will never induce me to be outdoors.

I used to have heartburn about once a day and a headache about three or four times a week and after attending for this trouble for years I began to think it was chronic and found it when my doctor told me the best investment I could make would be a fifty cent box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and I have invested about fifty cents a month for them ever since and when I stop to think that that is what I spend every day for cigars, I feel like shaking hands with myself for I can keep my stomach and digestion in first-class order for fifty cents a month. I don't care for any better life insurance.

My druggist tells me they are the most popular of all stomach medicines and that they have maintained their popularity and success because they do as advertised. They bring results, as results are what count in a patent medicine as much as in selling linoleum.

TO TELL ALL OF RACE LAW BRIBE

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—The firing of big guns began to-day in the legislative investigation that is expected to tear the lid from the most sensational story of corruption that has ever been heard in New York. Through ex-State Senator Otto Hoffman the details of the raising of $300,000 to raise money to fight the anti-race track bills in the New York State Legislature were expected.

It was Foelker's testimony that caused the indictment of ex-State Senator Frank J. Gardner. Gardner has been summoned to-day at office the committee that he made an offer of money to Foelker in connection with the race track bills. As an additional element of excitement, the appearance of ex-State Senator Benn Conger, who succeeded in having Assistant D. Ahles ousted from the Senate on charges of bribery.

It was expected that a prominent official would be named on the men who gave money to members of the Legislature in an attempt to defeat the anti-racing bills.

BOSTON STEAMER MAY BE IN STORM

That the steamship Rheingrat, which for some time has been running regularly between Boston and Hamburg has met with accident is feared, in view of the storm that caused such damage in Cuba. She left Boston October 6th, sailed into the fog with rudder, and was due at Hamburg Sunday or Monday.

CAPTAIN DUNN TELLS OF RESCUE.

Captain Dunn of the Trent dashed off two of the rescue in a message to the New York Times. Similar ones to the Chicago Record-Herald, and the London Daily Telegraph, contributed $30,000 for the purpose of the expedition.

Captain Dunn also advised Sanderson & Son, New York agents for the Royal Mail Steam Packet Co., that Subsequently more details came in a dispatch to the Associated Press.

Further wireless messages said that one of the America's motors had broken, which made more serious the predicament created by all the gas that could be spared was cast into the sea. It is also probable that rudder had failed, leaving them the jesting of its rudder fail or equilibrator, which served the triple

Crawford Ranges

The Crawford Gas Ovens are safe. They are lighted in a new way; there is no dangerous pilot light and explosions are impossible. This improvement is patented and very important.

The Damper is automatically opened by opening oven door to light the burners, which cannot be lighted until the door is opened.

In these Gas Ovens there is an extra set of burners at the top for broiling; a great advantage over the ordinary gas oven, insuring better broiling and great convenience.

The Oven Bottoms and Racks are cast iron, and the outer walls are triple—an interlining of asbestos between two sheets of iron, which assists to retain the heat.

The use of these Gas Ovens does not interfere in any way with the operation of the coal range—both can be used at the same time.

The Family Upstairs---Lo, the Poor Indian Double-Crosses Dingbat ✤ By Herriman

VAN LOAN'S STORY OF SLAUGHTER OF CUBS

By C. E. VAN LOAN.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 19.—A sandy-haired, smooth-faced, countryfied-looking party in a fuzzy black hat with a lump where the forefinger of his right hand should have been stood in the doorway of the Aldine Hotel before the second game of the world's series gently rubbing the aforesaid lump up and down the neck of a thermometer.

"Sixty-five," announced Mr. Mordecai Brown. "Boys, this is MY weather. You can safely announce that I am going to HAVE something in there this afternoon." Yes, kind friends, Mr. Brown had something when he went in but the things which he had were not a circumstance to the things which Mr. Brown got late along in the contest; on the draw as it were, namely and to wit, one of the finest and most comprehensive wallopings of his long and useful career. Wow—!

We had talked with Mr. Brown before the game, and he was so full of confidence that he seemed to be leaking a trifle. But his confidence was rudely punctured before long. During the first part of the memorable holocaust all the baseball luck broke for the Athletics, even after the Cubs went winging away in front with an ace tucked under Mr. M. Brown's belt.

"There won't be very much to this to-day," said the Chicago gentleman in the grand-stand. "Brownie" is one run to the good to begin; that ought to be plenty." The baseball luck began to nudge itself into the contest. Ira Thomas opened the third inning for Mr. Mack. Ira is not one of the men whom the Cubs worry about when he comes up with his bat. With one and one on him, Ira topped a curve ball and sent it hopping slowly down toward third base. Steinfeldt came tearing and felt for the ball with his bare hand, but it grazed the tips of his fingers, and the home delegation came up with a howl as the ball went twisting slowly away, and Ira crossed first base with a very lucky single to his credit.

Brown Fans Coombs.

Mr. Brown put two and two on Coombs and then fanned the hitting pitcher amid a silence that was almost painful.

The awkward Strunk bunted the first ball passed up to him, and it went sliding along the grass ten feet inside the first base line, Mordecai loping after it with his glove dragging on the ground. Mordecai caught up with the ball in plenty of time, scooped it into his glove and then scooped it out again, falling down on his right face right in front of the Peerless Leader, who made a wild dive after the ball just as Strunk galloped over the bag. It went for a hit. Briscoe Lord, who is some hitter, was the next man up. Briscoe looked at two and then snapped a lightning drive at Zimmerman, who tossed the ball to Tinker ahead of Strunk, but Joe had no chance to try for the double play at first, and Ira Thomas was on third base and Lord was on first and the locals were beginning to think that a one-run lead wasn't such a horrible thing, after all.

Right at this time, with two on base and two gone, the mighty Mr. Brown showed signs of perturbation. He went into executive session with the Peerless Leader, the subject being Eddie Collins, who came tripping light to the plate. Collins is one of the men for whom the Cubs have a wholesome regard, and already in this post-season series, Eddie has shown his calibre. Brown was worried, and he showed it.

Mordecai finally decided to make Eddie hit a curly one, but he wasted two before he put the ball over the heart of the plate for the first strike. Then a third ball and then another strike, and the count was three and two, with the tension in the stands at the breaking point. Brownie found the plate with the fast ball, but Collins took a swinging chop and sent a line drive over third base and into far left field. Sheckard went after it with a speed of a coyote and Thomas came coasting home with every brake set.

Now, note how the luck now gave the Athletics the lead. Thomas's run tied the score. Lord could easily have made third on the double, and he must have seen that Sheckard was throwing the ball as he rounded Steinfeldt's corner. Sheckard's throw came with the speed of a bullet, but it hopped out of Steinfeldt's glove and dropped behind him and, while the third baseman was running around in circles Lord raced home with the run which put the Athletics in the lead. Had Steinfeldt held that easy pass he could have thrown Lord out at the plate with thirty feet to spare, and the score would have remained a tie.

CUBS' BACKERS DEMAND 8 TO 5 ON SERIES NOW

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—There is a deep cloud of gloom hanging over Chicago fans to-day, as a result of the two successive defeats of the Chicago champions by the Philadelphia Athletics.

The two teams, accompanied by members of the National Commission, newspaper men and friends of both teams, arrived in Chicago to-day on two special trains for the third game of the championship series which will be played at the West Side Park to-morrow.

There is a bunch of gloom in the Chicago special, due to the fact that the team has been decisively defeated in the two opening games. Aboard the Philadelphia train, however, joy reigns supreme. Despite the losses Manager Frank Chance of the Cubs declared that the games on the home field would result in victories for the Cubs and that he believed the Cubs would win the series, handicaped as they are.

The train arrived here early this afternoon and thousands of fans were at the station to greet the players.

Cub fans to-day are a little shy of their money in the face of the two lickings delivered at Philadelphia, yet they still are willing to bet at the right odds. The most active betting to-day is even money that the Cubs take the opener on the home grounds. The odds on the series have been reversed. Instead of giving 8 to 5, the Cub fans are demanding 8 to 5 and are offering even money the series will not end in five games.

That Bender will not win a game on the West Side is backed at 4 to 5 and that the series does not go over six games is backed at 7 to 10. Athletics money is here in barrels and no commission will go a-begging.

ALGER GETS AWARD OVER RALPH TICKLE

HOWELL, A PEACH? NO, NO. A LEMON

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Johnny Marto found that Lew Howell was a California lemon and not a peach of a fighter at the Fairmont A. C. He cut open the lemon in the fourth round and smashed him to pieces in the early session of the fighting, nearly knocking him out twice. Howell had stage fright early in the session and acted like a novice. His boxing was clever, but his punches were weak. The tenth round was furious with Howell having slightly the better of the first two minutes, but Marto nearly knocked him out at the close.

JAPS EASY VICTIMS.

TOKYO, Oct. 19.—The baseball team representing the University of Chicago, which is making a tour of this country, again won from the Waseda University nine, by a score of 15 to 4. The Chicagos made nine hits and two errors, while the Waseda team made three hits and six errors.

CHERRYOLA WINNER.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 19.—The feature of racing at Churchill Downs was the Cherokee selling stakes, worth $1,500, in which three-year-olds and up were engaged at one mile. The race resulted in an easy victory for Cherryola. Prince Gal was second in front of Huck by half a length.

McLAUGHLIN MEETS NEIL TO-NIGHT

To-night at the Columbia Theatre Manager Farren will introduce to the sporting fraternity of Boston the undisputed heavyweight champion of Ireland, Jim McLaughlin, who will wrestle the Boston favorite, Neil Oleson. McLaughlin has defeated such well known men as Con Kelly and Jim Connelly and has a great reputation abroad. In Oleson he will meet a star mat artist who will keep the Irish champion moving all the time. They will wrestle to a finish, best two in three falls, catch as catch can style.

LEADING CRITICS TO REPORT SERIES

THE BOSTON AMERICAN will give the best and most complete stories of the world's baseball series. A corps of the leading baseball critics in the country will describe the coming battles in bright, breezy articles.

HUGH S. FULLERTON, the peer of all critics, will contribute interesting analytical accounts of the game.

C. E. VAN LOAN, America's most interesting sporting writer, will describe the battle in his humorous, snappy style.

CHARLES A. COMISKEY, master of the White Sox, will tell what plays turned the tide of battle.

JOHNNY EVERS, the world's greatest second baseman, will tell of the inside workings on the diamond.

CHICAGO FANS BASEBALL MAD

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—All the arrangements for the battle of the Cubs and Athletics here were completed before the teams left Philadelphia. All the seats that can be placed have been put in the West Side park, and practically the entire number of seats have been sold. That the defeat of the Cubs by the Athletics will have a decided effect on the price of seats in the hands of scalpers, was the opinion of those most interested. Many of those visited declared they had not been able to get any tickets to the series through the usual channels, or by buying them from persons who were unable to attend games after securing reservations.

At the Palmer House many tickets have been bought and sold for the games of Thursday and Friday, but the pasteboards for Sunday have been left entirely alone. At some of the other offices in the loop district the brokers declared they had made no effort to secure tickets for the games. They refused to give any particular reason other than that they had no customers, and they did not want to have tickets on hand without a chance to get their money back. Fans who have been trying hard to get seats for the big doings and who are willing to pay a premium in order to do so, say that there is a scarcity and none to be had except at prohibitive prices, so they have passed them by.

GOULETTE AND HEHIR SIGN FOR RACE HERE

Alec McLean, manager of the six day race that begins October 31 at the Boston Arena has secured the signatures of Alfred Goulette and Paddy O'Sullivan Hehir, to ride in the race as the Australian team. McLean said that he expected to secure the signatures of Eddie Root and Joe Fogler, before he returned to Boston. With Goulette and Hehir and Peddar Palmer and Ernest Pye riding as Australian teams there should be a warm scrap for the championship of the Antipodes. Jackie Clarke, who will ride as the partner of Floyd McFarland, is also from Australia. The American riders will have to do some lively riding to beat these five.

24,527 FANS SAW SECOND OF SERIES

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 19.—The official paid attendance was 24,527 and the total receipts were $35,137. Of this sum the National Commission received $3,513.70, the players $18,973.98 and the club owners $12,649.32.

KITSON GETS DRAW.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—George Kitson and Charlie Goldman fought ten fast rounds to a draw at the Reno A. C. in Brooklyn.

GAME PUT OVER.

The Rindge M. T. S.-Cambridge Latin game scheduled for this afternoon has been shifted to Friday afternoon, and will be played at the Broadway Field, Somerville, at 3:30.

CHICAGO FANS STILL BET ON CUBS TO WIN

CHICAGO, Oct 19.—As a result of the two decisive defeats administered to the Cubs by the Athletics, a large number of enthusiastic Chicago fans will continue to wear their Summer overcoats all Winter—and the Winters in Chicago are sometimes very severe.

Here is what they offered previous to the second game, the most of it, as it proved, at their own expense:

One to three that Cubs would win series in five games.

Four to five that Cubs would win series in six games.

Ten to nine on Cubs for the series.

Six to five that Brown would strike out more men than his opponent.

Three to two that Cubs would steal more bases than Athletics.

Notwithstanding their heavy losses on Monday, estimated to be $150,000, the fans came back stronger than ever yesterday, putting down bales of money at two to one that Mordecai Brown would turn the trick. Heavy commissions from Philadelphia, Detroit, Pittsburg and other points were promptly covered.

One peculiarity of the betting was that nearly all of the New York and Cincinnati money came with instructions to place on the Cubs. Detroit made a beautiful cleanup, getting even for enormous losses when the Cubs defeated the Tigers for the world's championship.

The backers of Philadelphia again turned lose a bundle of money that would stagger the proverbial mule.

Contrary to expectations the Quakers again wanted odds. Six to five was first asked and refused. Then nine to ten was offered. Some small lots were, of course, placed at the above figures, but the bulk of the commissions were gotten on at even money.

The biggest wager of the series developed, when Charles Feenes, rated as one of the shrewdest speculators in the country, succeeded in placing $8,000 to $10,000 that the Cubs would win the series. Prior the price had been considerably longer; in fact, numerous large wagers were made with the Cubs laying the price of 10 to 7.

At O'Leary's, as soon as a chunk of Cub support made its appearance there, a wad of equal proportions was forthcoming to take care of the Athletic end.

New York, which presumably has been preoccupied with its own clash between the Giants and the Yankees, sent in its first large commission on the series. About 90 per cent of this was support for the Cubs, and carried an "even money" stipulation.

Thousands of National League supporters, whose confidence had been only temporarily checked by defeat in Philadelphia on Monday, gathered at newspaper offices, around tickers and at other places and tried to account for the second drubbing by the Philadelphia Americans in the world's series.

The loss of the second game had a much more depressing influence, apparently, than the Monday defeat. Gloom has settled down and now hope seems to have taken the place of confidence.

GETS BOUT WITH BAT.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 19.—Battling Nelson and Arthur La Grave, a local lightweight, were matched to fight fifteen rounds before the Broadway A. C. in this city October 28.

DE ORO TAKES LEAD.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Alfred De Oro, three-cushion billiard champion, defeated Lloyd Jeune of Salt Lake City in the first block of fifty points for the premier title at Doyle's academy, the score being 50 to 37.

HOMMEY SHADES SHRUGO.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—In the star bout of ten rounds at Brown's gymnasium Packey Hommey had a shade the better of Young Shrugo of Jersey City. Hommey was the aggressor and by his clean hitting earned the honors of the bout.

ALL-STAR ELEVEN IN BATTLE WITH HARVARD

By E. V. B. PARKE.

One of the best chances to see the big Harvard team in practice scrimmage that will be afforded the public this fall, will come this afternoon, when the Crimson eleven lines up against the "All-Stars" in a twenty minute scrap in the Stadium. Anyone who can find the time to make the trip to Soldiers Field will, without doubt, find it worth their while to get there about 4 o'clock, when the gates will be thrown open to whosoever cares to enter and have a squint at the big fellows in action.

In addition the little fray this afternoon promises to be productive of real class, for the so-called "All-Stars" are composed of former football players from Harvard, Yale, Princeton and Michigan, including "Ham" Fish, captain of the Harvard team last year, and an all American tackle, and Steve Philbin, the wonderful half back on the Yale team last year, who also won for himself a position on Walter Camp's Eleven Best.

Walter Logan, captain of the Yale nine last year, and an end on the eleven, but prevented from playing in the Harvard game, because of injuries, Pfeiffer, a former Princeton back and lineman, Cass, also an erstwhile Tiger star pigskin chaser, "Sam" Hoar, a guard two years ago, Houston, an end on the Crimson team last year, and Crumpacker, a former Michigan and All Western lineman, will be others who will run up against the Harvard eleven when the whistle blows.

The team will be filled out with Auchincloss, who played a position on his freshmen team at Yale and later rowed in the varsity eight, Parks a sub on the Eli eleven, Dory, a substitute centre on the Crimson, recently, and Moore, a sub end on the same eleven several years ago.

Ex-Stars in Line-Up.

As it happens all of these men are pursuing the course in the Harvard law school and are therefore on the spot for such a battle. They were down on the field yesterday running through signals, and really made quite a formidable appearance, although it must be granted that they are not in very good condition.

With so many former stars in one line-up, however, there is sure to be something doing in the arena on Soldiers Field to-day, so make tracks for the Stadium if you can possibly find the time—for, oh, joy, there is no admission fee!

Just one word more before we leave the tale of the practice of the All-Stars on Soldiers Field yesterday afternoon. The spirit of Elihu Yale undoubtedly passed a bad night for "Horrible dictu" (meaning "horrible to relate") "Steve" Philbin pranced forth on the field clad in a Crimson Jersey! Isn't that enough to raise the calm spirit of patriotic Yale! And there can be no question but that the shades of Old Nassau sat up in horror to behold their former warrior,—Cass, appear in the same garb. Both of these gentlemen may, however, be excused by the old proverb, which runs—"When in Rome do as the Romans do," but that won't soothe the spirits of their Alma Maters. Enough of this.

The Harvard eleven will be put through an hour of hard secret drill this afternoon prior to the scrap with the All Stars, including a twenty minute scrimmage with the second team, the gates opening to the public immediately after, at about 4 o'clock.

The 'varsity needs all the work they can possibly get in the scrimmaging line before the contest with Brown on Saturday, and the two sessions of twenty minutes each, which are slated for this afternoon, will go a long way towards putting them into the right sort of trim for the struggle with the Brunonians.

The work for the 'varsity yesterday afternoon consisted of a twenty minute scrimmage with the second team, the affair really being two scrimages of ten minutes each, the second team being hammered first by the varsity and then by the varsity subs. Each of the latter scored a touchdown during their ten minutes of play, but the scrimmage lacked life and snap, the play of the subs being ragged and disorganized at times.

As far as experience has shown this year, however, it must be confessed that the Harvard 'varsity has not at any time given as good an account of itself in scrimmage as it had in games, so really it is hardly fair to draw conclusions with regard to the progress of the team from midweek scrimmages, as it always seems to come fast at the end of the week.

The gains of the 'varsity yesterday were none of them phenomenally long, but on the whole fairly consistent, and of sufficient distance to finally send the ball over the goal in the arms of Corbett.

The subs scored their touchdowns, when Huntington at centre for them, recovered Felton's long punt, well down in the second team's territory for a gain of sixty yards, several plunges then resulting in a score. Huntington's recovery of the punt was one of the bright spots in the scrimmage for it shows an alacrity and an ability to follow the ball, which means much to the success of a first-class team under the new rules.

Although most of the 'varsity regulars were out for work yesterday, some of the players are still on the sick list. The latter include Wigglesworth, who as has been said, is ill with jaundice, Leslie, the fullback, who had a bad knee, "Ted" Frothingham, whose leg is still bothering him, Keays, the sub guard, who has a lame foot, and Perry Smith, sub centre, who has a muscle bruise in his side which may keep him some time.

Potter ran the team yesterday, while the backfield was composed of Corbett, Campbell, and T. H. Frothingham at fullback. The line was the regular 'varsity aggregation. Although as has been stated, the 'varsity lacked ginger in their playing, their team work was still good, and no ground could be made through them by the second eleven. Potter showed good judgment in the selection of his plays, but further than what has been said, the work showed little improvement.

The line-up of the All-Stars when they face the Crimson eleven this afternoon at 4 o'clock has been announced as follows, although the management has reserved the right to change without notice: l.e., Auchincloss (Yale); l.t., Crumpacker (Michigan); l.g., Parks (Yale) or Dorr (Harvard); c., Cass (Princeton); r.g., Hoar (Harvard); r.t., Fish (Harvard); r.e., Houston (Harvard); q.b., Moore (Harvard); l.h.b., Pfeiffer (Princeton); r.h.b., Logan (Yale), f.b., Philbin (Yale).

Her Hair

Was Thin, so She Couldn't Wear a Large Hat.

It's a big problem nowadays for a woman to get her hat on without wearing an unsanitary "rat." If all women with thin, faded, falling hair would do as Mrs. J. S. Fisher, of Spruce St., Philadelphia, did, they'd soon be happy. Read what she says:

"I was never able to wear a large hat until now. The tonic has thickened my hair and is doing a great deal for me. I am only too pleased to be one of the multitude to praise Lorrimer's Excelsior Hair Tonic."

Get Lorrimer's Excelsior Hair Tonic at Riker-Jaynes or of your nearest druggist, and get it while there's still time to improve and save your hair.

KLINE AND KAUFMAN BATTLE TO A DRAW

BALTIMORE, Oct. 10. — Patsy Kline of Brooklyn and Jack Kaufman of Philadelphia fought a ten-round draw here before the Armory A. C. fifteen hundred fans. Kline had the better of the fighting except in the fifth when he pounced through a left and a right to the jaw and floored Kaufman. Kaufman, however, came back strong in the next frame and had Kline going in the seventh. Kline, however, came back strong in the eighth and ninth rounds and had the better of the milling in the tenth. Kaufman was the aggressor throughout the bout, but Kline's cleverness and good physical condition, it was felt, gained him the decision. Kline weighed 135 pounds and Kaufman 136.

FORMER YALE STAR COACH AT EXETER

EXETER, N. H., Oct. 10. — Carl S. Storer, the former Yale centre rush, has been appointed football coach at Phillips Exeter Academy, succeeding Clyde Murphy, who has been in charge of the eleven for the last two years. Storer has had considerable experience as a coach, having been at Brown University for a number of years. He was graduated from Yale in 1909 and was a member of the famous Yale team which defeated Harvard that year. He played centre rush on the Yale team for three years, and was captain of the team in his senior year. Storer is a graduate of Phillips Exeter Academy and played on the football team there for four years.

COLBY MEN READY FOR HOLY CROSS

WATERVILLE, Me., Oct. 10. — Colby is getting ready for the game next Saturday with Holy Cross in Worcester. There will be the Maine games just with Bowdoin at Brunswick, October 29. Manager Goodwin, Notre Dame graduate, said at some date that it all will depend on Coach Bates as to whether the team would play Holy Cross. Bates has failed thus far to sign up a game with Tufts at Portland on the date he should have saved, per agreement made in the spring with the other Maine managers for Colby.

Colby has three of her varsity men out of the game this week, as a result of injuries sustained in the game against Bates. Captain Stanley Woods, quarterback, has a sprained leg. Bagnall, left tackle, has some ligaments torn and Mikelski, end, is also out of the game. All will be in some next week.

VERY GOOD WEATHER FOR GOOD CLOTHES--

It may be raining today but up to last night no man could exercise his clothes on account of the weather. This has been an ideal Fall season for good clothes—this probably accounting for our enormous business.

Don't let it get away from you a G. & K. # Julia Ward Howe's Last Message to Women of America

[illegible]

By JULIA WARD HOWE

Copyright, 1910, [illegible]

WE must all live in the present [illegible] to Date!" The [illegible] now is our age, as well as that of [illegible]. We must not cling to the outworn past, for that is to hinder progress.

There are some women who are like forgotten anchors that hold back the ship; do not be a forgotten [illegible] in the conditions and the opportunities of women that I have seen in my lifetime seem well nigh incredible. When I was young we were "shut-ins," and we were not very much encouraged to go about. There was a much quoted sentiment from the Bible to the effect that it was better for women not to go about from house to house.

I would have every girl who wishes to go to college make every effort to do so. Whatever future lies before her, education is the great preparation [illegible] life. I think a college education gives a [illegible] woman a better chance to develop some good taste, and perhaps some talent. If she [illegible], education is doubly [illegible] as [illegible] give her something to [illegible] herself.

[illegible] people, men [illegible] often [illegible] that they [illegible] things [illegible] in life [illegible] this [illegible] the young [illegible] quite [illegible] an, who [illegible] heaven [illegible] from the books [illegible] a great [illegible] that [illegible] very [illegible] when [illegible] he was dreadfully laughed at. He [illegible], however, succeeded in getting an [illegible] and became a distinguished scientist.

[illegible] this brings us to the important fact that [illegible] never forget that many of the greatest geniuses have been of the peasant class. Luther was a peasant, and so was Carlyle. The great Giotto was a shepherd lad. On a piece of stove he drew a picture of a sheep. This was shown to Cimabue, the most famous painter of that time, whose pupil Giotto afterward became.

I do not think it would be wise or good for all girls to go to college. We must remember Saint Paul's admonition, to consider the diversity of gifts. In the last century when the Greeks were first emancipated from the iron rule of the Turks they all wished to become lawyers, doctors or philosophers; the learned professions were overcrowded and no one remained to carry on the necessary business of life.

After the War of the Rebellion we had in our country something of the same situation. History repeats itself. The emancipated negroes all wished to study metaphysics and the more abstruse branches of knowledge. The great law of supply and demand, however, quickly sets such difficulties straight.

So with us women, we must remember the importance of the diversity of gifts. A very ignorant woman came to me once and asked me to teach her how to write poetry. She did not know how the thing was done [illegible] earn!

Real success for a girl is to be of service to her day and generation, and to understand it. This is not so easy as it appears. How she can best serve depends upon her taste and upon how she may be placed. It may be of vital importance to her family to have her follow one specialty, such as housekeeping and domestic economy.

The legitimate claims of home and family are never to be neglected or postponed. The individual will lose more morally by neglecting them than she can possibly gain in taste or intellect.

Do not think, however, that you must resign all claims to the higher education because it may not be possible for you to go to college. People who love study will study under very adverse circumstances.

When I was in Santo Domingo I was once at the house of a man who was a carpenter and I saw there some Greek books.

JULIA WARD HOWE [illegible]

What are these books doing here?" I asked the carpenter's wife.

"My husband is studying Greek," she said. "He felt he must read the New Testament in the language in which it was written."

I myself did not learn Greek till I was fifty years old, so let no girl think that it is too late for her to begin this study. I say to you all what I once said to a young friend:

"Study Greek! It's better worth having than a diamond necklace!"

Remember that education is the key with which the door of the mind is opened. It is the way of escape from the cares that, unrelieved by some intellectual effort, may become benumbing and sordid cares. Beware of the treadmill of domestic duties, for that is what they may become if at the right and proper seasons you do not spread your wings and rise above them.

I do not undervalue the domestic cares and duties, but I would remind you of our dual nature, and when all our time and power are put into the purely material care for the physical wants of the family, the spiritual needs must suffer.

I do not think that it lessons a girl's chance to marry if she goes to college, but I do think she is likely to attract a different sort of man.

I have been asked my opinion as to whether the women of our country to-day as a whole are too extravagant in the matter of dress. This is a difficult question to answer, but I can say that I think as a whole our women are nearer to a general good taste to-day than they were fifty years ago. Dress is very important because it is one mode of expression.

We like to see in the most poverty stricken dress a nice attention to propriety of form and color. We should try to avoid the two extremes of giving too much or too little time and thought to the matter of dress. One young woman, who was heard to boast that it only took her ten minutes to dress, received the merited reproof:

"You look as if it had only taken you ten minutes to dress."

To be suitably and becomingly dressed is surely one of the duties of life, but to make dress our chief care is a grave mistake. Love of ornament is by no means synonymous with love of the beautiful.

The taste which overloads dress is often quite in opposition to the true sense of beauty. The reason why education is usually so poor among women of fashion is that it is not needed for the life which they elect to lead.

With a good figure, good clothes, a fine carriage, with a little reading of the daily papers and of the fashionable reviews, and above all with the happy tact which often enables women to make a large display of very small acquirements, the woman of fashion may never feel the need of true education. We pity her none the less, since she will never know its peace and delight.

I pray this generation of women, which has seen such enlargements of the old narrow order, to deserve its high post as guardian of the future. Let it leave to its children a noble standard of womanhood, free, pure, and above all, laborious. In training and in education, the woman's influence comes before that of the man and outlasts it.

The figure of the infant Christ dwells always in our minds, accompanied by that of the gracious mother who gave Him to the world. Let the fact of this great gift prefigure to us the august office of Woman.

Hers be it also to preserve and transmit from age to age the Christian doctrine and the Christian faith. And, in order that she may fully realize the glory and the blessedness of giving, let her remember that what is worthily given to one time is given to all time.

I was very happy on my recent ninety-first birthday (and on other days), in experiencing to such a degree the good will of my many friends. What more can I wish for? To deserve it!

JULIA WARD HOWE.

Never Too Old to Love

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

THE stupid people who declare that love is a disease to which the young alone are subject, don't know what they are talking about. Mrs. [illegible] Hoffman fell in love at eighty [illegible] how she describes the symptoms:

Something starts at my toes and tickles till it reaches my nose.

You think you're floating in a cloud and don't care if the bottom drops out of everything.

You can't eat.

Don't wash your windows when you're in love. You'll forget and fall out.

You want to write poetry, but you better not. It's generally [illegible].

Have you ever felt any of these sensations? If so, you have been in love.

The only strange feature about Mrs. Hoffman's case, is that she should have waited until eighty to feel that way for the first time. Most women who live to be eighty have [illegible] times.

Ninon de l'Enclos, the famous French beauty, had scores of men madly in love with her when she had reached the age of ninety.

And if so many loved Ninon, Ninon must have loved a few at least. Many women grow to middle age before they fall in love. And love when it comes to [illegible] thirty, comes to stay. [illegible] be lacking some of the [illegible] enthusiasms of love at one [illegible] keep to [illegible].

[illegible] believer in the "better to have loved and lost than never to have loved at all" theory.

[illegible] woman who has loved even though the love be lost, has known [illegible] the sweetness of life, at least.

Nature's first law is love regardless [illegible] but do not count your life wasted if you have known what it is to [illegible].

I never knew real sadness until I fell in love. A woman once said to me.

"Did you ever know real happiness either until you fell in love?" I asked.

"No," she answered frankly. "I did not."

Love means much more to women than [illegible] to [illegible].

[illegible] most absorbing occupation in a man's life, and loving is the most absorbing in a woman's.

That is one reason why I would rather be a woman.

The cleverest man in the world does not begin to understand woman. He does not [illegible] and that she always wants to know.

When a man ceases to love a woman it is much better that he should tell her honestly. He cannot make himself [illegible], and, if his love has grown cold, it is [illegible] in the long run to say to her [illegible] but we [illegible] what it was, let us keep respect and friendship, as far as possible, but we cannot be revived.

[illegible] is the bitter, sorrowful truth, love cannot be rekindled. But at least she has [illegible] love, and that is better than having [illegible] heart a dried up, withered thing that never warmed and flamed into life.

I think that because you are over [illegible] you will never fall in love, for [illegible] will, headlong, heedlessly.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR CURED

A Lady Will Send Free to any Sufferer the Secret which Cured Her

Since a child I was distressed and humiliated by an unwelcome growth of hair [illegible] face and arms. I tried all the depilatories, powders, liquids, creams and other [illegible] preparations I ever heard of, only to make it worse. For weeks I suffered the electric needle without being rid of my blemish. I spent a great deal of money on various things in vain, until a friend recommended a simple preparation which succeeded where all else failed.

This simple remedy, a harmless, soluble liquid that your own doctor would endorse, enabled me permanently to find entire relief from all trace of unwelcome hair, and forever end my embarrassment. It is simple, safe, sure, and can be used privately at home, without fear of pain or blemish. It makes the electric needle entirely unnecessary.

I will tell in detail full particulars to enable any other sufferer to achieve the same happy results as I did privately at home. All I ask is a two cent stamp for reply. Address CAROLINE OSGOOD, 110 F, Old P. O. St., Providence, R. I.

The Laughing Satyr

The Story of a Studio Murder Mystery, from "The Veil of Clay," by Meta Simmins

(Copyright in America by London Daily Mail, 1910)

SEVENTEENTH INSTALMENT

IN the night time Jardine returned to his cottage from his visit to Mr. Andrew. His mind had begun to warn [illegible] of the drug which [illegible]. He felt that [illegible] fight a [illegible] fast.

He must give it up; even if it meant [illegible] nights—even if the intolerableness of them drove him back to town.

He turned in at the little gate so staring white in the starlight; the homely flowers in the little garden smelt almost intolerably sweet, the moon that was just rising silvered the upper windows.

The sleeping garden, the dark blur of the house, all seemed unspeakably peaceful. As he pushed open the door it crumpled up a letter that had come apparently by the infrequent second post.

He picked it up and looked at it. It was addressed in Mrs. McIlwraith's straggling hand.

Standing there he opened it with the premonition of evil that London letters always roused in him now, and read it in the light that was clear enough to enable him with only a slight effort to [illegible] formed char[illegible].

It was as rambling and unconnected as the woman's self. The only items of interest it contained came at the end.

"I saw Miss [illegible] yesterday. She looks well and happy, but there's bad news of poor Mrs. Stuyvesant. I saw her maid a day or so back. Her mistress had a bad stroke ten days ago, and the doctors say she will never speak again. The judgment of Heaven seems on that family."

With a sense [illegible] Jardine was conscious that his heart gave a quick throb that was nothing more or less than relief.

He crushed the gossiping letter in his hand and went into the [illegible].

Burying the Imp

On the mantelpiece behind a photograph frame stood the half-full blue bottle that ought to have been replenished that morning at Luxwood. He took it up and carried it out into the garden; his first intention had been to empty it out on to the earth—but that seemed a desecration of the sweet night fragrance.

With infinite care he scraped a hole in the warm, moist clay, emptied the bottle of its liquid, warm, smelling contents, then placed the bottle in the moistened hole, and drew the earth over it and about it, trampling down its grave with his feet.

He turned with the intention of reentering the house, and as he did so he became aware of a strange thing. His figure, as he stood there, seemed to throw two shadows—two shadows, gaunt and elongated and black—athwart the beaten path that gleamed like a slab of solid silver in the moonlight.

Then in a flash the second shadow was gone; only his own stretched dark and immensely long. Turning quickly, he was in time to see a head duck under the hedge.

A stranger—and why should a stranger show so absorbed an interest in the moonlight gardening operations of the inhabitant of a, to all outward appearances, farm hand's cottage?

Only one answer suggested itself to Richard Jardine's mind, a very ugly one. He was being watched.

Jardine went back into the house.

His short lived sense of security was utterly dead within him. The treadmill of his thoughts, stilled for a little time, was creaking and grinding on again. The fear that had been crouching so long in the shadow had sprung at last and was tearing at him with poisoned claws; for if the thing he thought were actual fact—if indeed he were suspected and watched by the police, that meant the end. All roads were closed to him, he was faced by the dead wall of the inevitable.

The Click of the Gate

He went upstairs presently to his bedroom, treading heavily, a man bowed down once more by a well nigh unbearable burden.

He went to bed at once, resolutely settling himself to sleep. It was only a question of will, he told himself, and drove out the thoughts from his mind with the scourge of his will again and again, only to have them trooping back strengthened and reinforced.

Through the widely flung windows came a sudden subdued burst of song—the soft, distant song of the nightingale [illegible] woods for a few [illegible] lay [illegible] to it half [illegible] of nervous distress [illegible] became [illegible] soft and subdued also, but nearer, a sound of earth and not of heaven; the hardly to be distinguished click of the garden gate.

No sound of footsteps followed, though Jardine lay with every faculty sharpened [illegible] on his elbow in the bed [illegible] moment or two he lay down [illegible] up again, this time [illegible] altogether [illegible] had [illegible] the still air from the garden, [illegible] not to have been [illegible] one whose nerves were not keyed up, as his own were, to the highest pitch of nervous tension.

[illegible] stole to the window, the moon that had silvered the upper part of the house earlier in the night was now high in the heavens, her light flooded the garden, leaving the windows in shadow.

The Imp and the Police

His ears had played him no trick. The garden gate had clicked. There was some one in the garden.

Wrapped about by a curious sense of unreality, Jardine stood there motionless in the shadow of the curtain watching the man whose movements were so deft and rapid, and withal so cautious.

Just for a moment he hardly knew what he was about, this night marauder; then his imagination rather than his sight leaped to an understanding of his movements. He was prodding the earth, turning it lightly here and there in the vicinity of the spot where he himself only a few hours ago had dug a grave and buried a fierce temptation.

Then as he watched the trowel of the searching man struck something, the small metallic sound came up distinctly to Jardine where he stood. He saw the man with an eager movement stoop down and pick something from the ground, and, flicking the clinging earth from it, held it out in the moonlight. A small, common medicine bottle—the habitation of his bottle imp.

There was only one meaning to be read into that trivial act for Richard Jardine. It meant that the police were on his track—that invisible eyes watched his every movement.

And, as a realization of this meaning came home to the man by the window, he took a sudden resolution. He went quickly across the room to the door, opened it quietly, and went downstairs.

* * *

THE doctor's prophecy to Constance Knowles had been justified sooner than he had expected. Mrs. Stuyvesant was sufficiently convalescent to be moved to a low couch, to be dressed daily.

Sometimes her speech was more coherent and consecutive than at others, and she was capable of uttering unsuggested connected sentences of pleasure or pain, dislike or desire; at other times it would seem as though she could only echo words that she heard—the doctor's name, and of the nurse or her maid. Never her son's name nor that of Jardine nor Jardine's sister.

More mumbling, indistinct enough, but intelligible. It began to dawn on the doctor that this woman's silence had been a husbanding of her strength and powers, playing lying before her to do—something that must be done, and she had dreaded lest some second catastrophe should fall upon her, destroying, once and forever, all powers of speech.

"Send to Scotland Yard." With infinite trouble and difficulty, controlling with an effort her irritation at his many failures to understand her, the woman gradually makes plain her desire. She wants to see some one from Scotland Yard. At once—without delay. It is imperative that she should do so, she has an important communication to make. Delay may be fatal.

"I shall do as you wish, Mrs. Stuyvesant," the doctor replied, "but you will have to be very stern with yourself. If it is anything that will excite you unduly."

It was not too late. He comforted her with the assurance, saying that he would telephone to the Yard at once.

Scotland Yard responded with an alacrity popularly supposed to be unusual. Within an hour a detective-inspector had called and had had his preliminary interview with the doctor in charge of the case.

Now that the summer is over, the woman with tender skin finds her face covered with ugly freckles, and she fears that she has ruined her complexion.

Fortunately for her peace of mind, the recent discovery of a new drug, Othine—double strength, makes it possible for even those most susceptible to freckles to have a skin clear and white. No matter how stubborn a case of freckles you have, the double strength Othine will remove them. Get an ounce package from Houghton & Dutton or Riker-Jaynes Drug Co., and banish the freckles. DAYSEY MAYME APPLETON arose when her name was called on the program at the morning meeting of "The Hour Has Come" Club, and shuffling to the platform in her hobble skirt, unfolded her manuscript on the table in front of her and, after an impressive pause, during which she pushed her front hair back and her back hair forward, said:

"My paper to-day, my fellow sisters, is devoted to Helpful Hints. It is a String of Beads for Suffering Sisters, and if I say anything this morning that will be helpful to any among you, I will feel amply rewarded.

"I see that some of you wives are complaining because your husbands don't understand you. My dear sisters, the best thing that can happen to some women is the failure of their husbands to understand them.

"Did it occur to any of you that a nose bag for the family horse with the family coat of arms embroidered on it, would be a pleasing Christmas present for an appreciative husband?

"When [illegible] woman is a stranger in New York, and has no neighbor to assist her, she has hitherto been compelled to tie herself into all sorts of gymnastic knots to button her waist up the back, and even then never reached the fourth button from the top, but I am told these contortionists' feats are no longer necessary, because of the ball boy. I ask for a discussion before we adjourn on this question of the proprieties: If a woman must choose between the ball boy and the fourth button, which should it be?

"There are some among us who go through life joylessly because we have no foreign labels on our suit cases, and to them I make this suggestion for showing that foreign travel is not the only way to attain distinction: I have not been abroad, but my suit case attracts as much attention as if I had been around the Horn, for I have on it labels like these: 'Adenoids Removed in 1903'; 'On the Operating Table Seven Times in 1908'; 'Floating Kidney Anchored in 1909'; 'My Appendix Has Been Cut Out, How About Yours?' etc., etc."

Then Daysey Mayme bowed and shuffled to her seat.

A CONTINUED PICTURE DRAMA OF LOVE AND HATE, WITH A THRILL IN ITS EVERY PICTURE

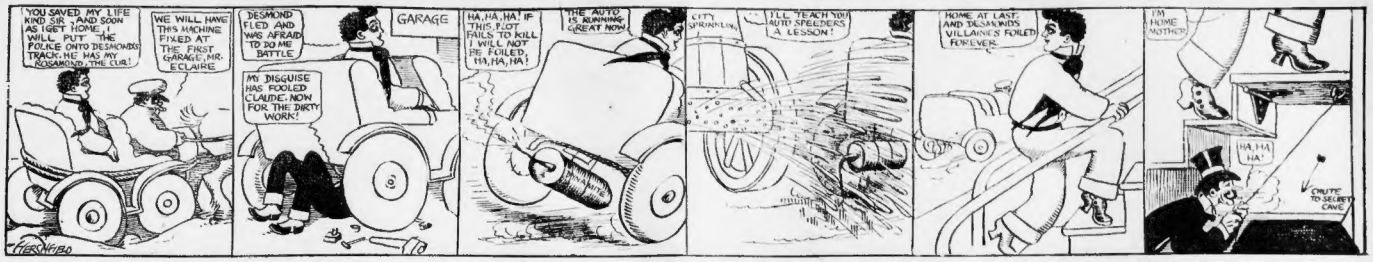
Copyright, 1910, by American Journal-Examiner



Hiding in a busted auto is not very classy, but it's better than being dragged over rough roads on one's face as Claude was.

Yes, that is Desmond in disguise, pretending to repair the machine. That double dyed crook would stoop to anything.

Pipe what the lowbrow did. When that fuse burns down, Bing! Won't the coroner have an awful job gathering up the remains!

Nothing doing! Claude doesn't even know that the sprinkling cart man has saved his life. And Desmond is out four dollars' worth of dynamite.

Home at last! But Claude's troubles are not over. As soon as he changes his collar, he's got to chase out and find Rosamond.

One step more, and the trap will be sprung! What happens after that you will be told in the next pictures. If you miss them, you'll always regret it.

THE ATLANTIC CROSSED BY BALLOON

Edgar Allan Poe's Famous "Balloon" Hoax

SECOND INSTALMENT.

"This model (which, through want of time, we have necessarily described in an imperfect manner) was put in action at the Adelaide Gallery, where is accomplished a velocity of five miles per hour; although, strange to say, it excited very little interest in comparison with the previous complex machine of Mr. Henson—so resolute is the world to despise any thing which carries with it an air of simplicity. To accomplish the great desideratum of aerial navigation, it was very generally supposed that some exceedingly complicated application must be made of some amazingly profound principle in dynamics.

"So well satisfied, however, was Mr. Mason of the ultimate success of his invention, that he determined to construct immediately, if possible, a balloon of sufficient capacity to test the question by a voyage of some extent—the original design being to cross the British Channel, as before, in the Nassau balloon. To carry out his views he solicited and obtained the patronage of Sir Everard Bringhurst and Mr. Osborne, two gentlemen well-known for scientific acquirement, and especially for the interest they have exhibited in the progress of aeronation. The project, at the desire of Mr. Osborne, was kept a profound secret from the public—the only persons entrusted with the design being those actually engaged in the construction of the machine, which was built under the superintendence of Mr. Mason, Mr. Holland, Sir Everard Bringhurst and Mr. Osborne, at the seat of the latter gentleman near Penstruthal, in Wales. Mr. Henson, accompanied by his friend Mr. Ainsworth, was admitted to a private view of the balloon on Saturday last—when the two gentlemen made final arrangements to be included in the adventure. We are not informed for what reason the latter seamen were also included in the party—but in the course of a day or two we shall put our readers in possession of the highest particulars respecting this extraordinary voyage.

"The balloon is composed of silk, varnished with the liquid gum caoutchouc. It is of vast dimensions, containing more than 40,000 cubic feet of gas; but as coal gas was employed in place of the more expensive and inconvenient hydrogen, the supporting power of the machine, when fully inflated, and immediately after inflation, is not more than about 2,500 pounds. The coal gas is not only much less costly, but is easily procured and managed.

Balloon of Silk.

"For its introduction into common use for purposes of aeronation, we are indebted to Mr. Charles Green. Up to his discovery the process of inflation was not only exceedingly expensive and inconvenient. Two and even three days have frequently been wasted in futile attempts to procure a sufficiency of hydrogen to fill a balloon, from which it had great tendency to escape, owing to its extreme subtlety, and its affinity for the surrounding atmosphere. In a balloon sufficiently perfect to retain its contents of coal gas unaltered, in quality or amount, for six months, an equal quantity of hydrogen could not be maintained in equal purity for six weeks.

"The supporting power, being estimated at 2,500 pounds, and the united weights of the party amounting only to about 1,200, there was left a surplus of 1,300, of which again 1,200 was exhausted by ballast, cordage, anchors, etc., of various sizes, with their respective weights marked upon them—by cordage barometers, telescopes, barrels containing provisions for a fortnight, water casks, cloaks, carpet bags and various other indispensable matters, including a coffee warmer, contrived for warming coffee by means of slack-lime, so as to dispense altogether with fire, if it should be judged prudent to do so. All these articles, with the exception of the ballast and a few trifles, were suspended from the hoop overhead. The car is much smaller and lighter, in proportion, than the one appended to the model. It is formed of a light wicker, and is wonderfully strong for so frail-looking a machine. It is about four feet deep. The rudder is also very much larger, in proportion, than that of the model; and the screw is considerably smaller. The balloon is furnished besides with a grapnel and a guide rope, which latter is of the most indispensable importance. A few words, in explanation, will here be necessary for such of our readers as are not conversant with the details of aeronstation.

Ready for Flight.

"As soon as the balloon quits the earth it is subjected to the influence of many circumstances tending to create a difference in its weight; augmenting or diminishing its ascending power. For example, there may be a deposition of dew upon the silk, to the extent, even, of several hundred pounds; ballast has then to be thrown out of the machine may descend. This ballast being discarded and a clear sunshine evaporating the dew, and at the same time expanding the gas in the silk, the whole will again rapidly ascend. To check this ascent the only resource is (or rather was until Mr. Green's invention of the guide-rope) the permission of the escape of gas from the valve; but, in the loss of gas, is a proportionate general loss of ascending power; so that, in a comparatively brief period, the best constructed balloon must necessarily exhaust all its resources and come to the earth. This was the great obstacle to voyages of length.

"The guide-rope remedies the difficulty in the simplest manner conceivable. It is merely a very long rope which is suffered to trail from the car, and the effect of which is to prevent the balloon from changing its level in any material degree. If, for example, there should be a deposition of moisture upon the silk, and the machine begins to descend in consequence, there will be no necessity for discharging ballast to remedy the increase of weight, for it is remedied, or counteracted, in an exactly just proportion, by the deposit on the ground of just so much of the end of the rope as is necessary. If, on the other hand, any circumstances should cause undue levity, and consequent ascent, this levity is immediately counteracted by the additional weight of rope upraised from the earth. Thus, the balloon can neither ascend or descend, except within very narrow limits, and its resources, either in gas or ballast, remain comparatively unimpaired. Whenever, however, any expense of water, it becomes necessary to employ small kegs of copper or wood, filled with liquid ballast of a lighter nature than water. These float and serve all the purposes of a more ponderous one. Another most important office of the guide-rope is to point out the direction of the balloon. The rope drags either on land or sea, while the balloon is free; the latter, consequently, is always in advance when any progress whatever is made; a comparison, therefore, by means of the compass, of the relative position of the two objects, will always indicate the course. In the same way the angle formed by the rope with the vertical axis of the machine, indicates the velocity. When there is no angle—in other words, when the rope hangs perpendicularly, the whole apparatus is stationary; but the larger the angle, that is to say, the farther the balloon precedes the end of the rope, the greater the velocity, and the contrary.

"As the original design was to cross the British Channel and alight as near Paris as possible, the voyagers had taken the precaution to prepare themselves with passports directed to all parts of the continent, specifying the nature of the expedition, as in the case of the 'Nassau' voyage, and entitling the adventurers to the exemption from the usual formalities of office, except where absolutely necessary. These passports superfluous.

"The inflation was commenced very quietly at daybreak on Saturday morning, the 6th instant, in the courtyard of Weal-Vor House, Mr. Osborne's seat, about a mile from Penstruthal, in North Wales; and at seven minutes past eleven, every thing being ready for departure, the balloon was set free, rising gently but steadily, in a direction nearly south; no use being made, for the first half hour, of either the screw or rudder. We proceed now with the journal, as transcribed by Mr. Forsyth from the joint MSS. of Mr. Monck Mason and Mr. Ainsworth. The body of the journal, as given, is in the handwriting of Mr. Mason, and a P. S. is appended, each day, by Mr. Ainsworth, who has in preparation, and will shortly give the public a more minute and, no doubt, a thrillingly interesting account of the voyage.

"Saturday, April the 6th—Every preparation likely to embarrass us having been made overnight, we commenced the ascension this morning at daybreak; but owing to a thick fog, which encumbered the folds of the silk and rendered it unmanageable, we did not get through before eleven o'clock. Cut loose, then, in high spirits, and rose gently but steadily, with a light breeze at north, which bore us in the direction of the British Channel. Found the ascending force greater than we had expected; and as we arose higher and so got clear of the cliffs, and more in the sun's rays, our ascent became very rapid. I did not wish, however, to use gas at so early a period of the adventure, and so concluded to ascend for the present. We soon ran out our guide-rope; the earth we still went up very rapidly. The balloon was unusually steady and looked beautifully. In about ten minutes after starting the barometer indicated an altitude of 15,000 feet. The weather was remarkably fine and the view of the subjacent country—a most romantic one when seen from any point—was now especially sublime. The numerous deep gorges possessed the appearance of lakes on account of the dense vapors with which they were filled, and the pinnacled crags to the southward, piled in inextricable confusion, resembling nothing so much as the giant cities of Eastern fable. We were rapidly approaching the mountains to the south, but our elevation was more than sufficient to enable us to pass them in safety. In a few minutes we scarred over them in fine style; and Mr. Ainsworth, with the sextant, proceeded at their apparent want of altitude when viewed from the car, the tendency of great elevation in a balloon being to reduce inequalities of the surface below to nearly a dead level. At half past seven, still proceeding nearly south, we obtained our first view of the British Channel, and in fifteen minutes afterward the line of breakers on the coast appeared immediately beneath us, and we were fairly out at sea. We now resolved to let off enough gas to bring our guide-rope, with the boys affixed, into the water. This was immediately done, and we commenced a gradual descent. In about twenty minutes our first buoy dipped, and at the touch of the second soon afterward, we remained stationary as to elevation.

Pickling Pointers.

CORN RELISH

TWO dozen ears of sweet corn, two heads of cabbage, four green peppers, eight onions, two cupfuls of sugar, one-half cupful salt, one-eighth pound mustard, four pints of vinegar. Remove seeds from pepper, chop pepper, onions and cabbage fine as desired in chopping bowl, add corn after removing from cob; add salt, sugar, and mustard; mix well; add vinegar and cook together; stir well while cooking and put in self-sealers while hot.

PEACH HINT

WHEN preparing peaches for pickling, canning, etc., the following method of peeling them is not only a great time saver, but also avoids any waste of the peaches: Into a medium sized stew pan or kettle of water, just at the boiling point, put three or four heaping tablespoonfuls of borax. Into this drop the peaches, letting them remain three or four minutes. Take them out and the skin will peel off by rubbing with the fingers. Have handy another kettle of cold water. After removing the skins drop the peaches into the cold water, allowing them to remain only an instant. Frequently change the cold water to eliminate all traces of the borax.

SUBDUING ENVY

WHEN Jones sits in his motor car
And travels fast and travels far
I envy not, but muse instead
On what sad thoughts may fill his head.

He's out of gasoline again;
Somebody's robbing him, that's plain.
His bill for oil has just come due;
He needs a set of spark plugs, too.

That tire which he bought this year
Was made by fakers, that is clear.
He notices with bitter pain,
It must be vulcanized again.

Just yesterday he spoiled a suit,
He needs one and some shoes to boot.
Alas, he's just enough to pay
That new transmission bill to-day.

His chauffeur doesn't care a whit
When he zips up the law a bit,
For him fifteen is much too slow;
He doesn't pay the fines, you know.

The motor knocks like anything
Another jolt will break a spring.
"Be careful on this turn, I say!"
"Good lord! A damage suit to pay!"

With these sad thoughts I stay my soul
As shining autos past me roll
While I am scratching up the pelf
To buy a motor car myself.

Strong and Happy Women

USE go about their duties cheerfully—at home, in office or in store, or shop—They find life pleasant and the world full of good; they are attractive and they are able to make things pleasant for those about them. But women often find themselves weak and anemic or run down—maybe, through no fault of their own—Then there is depression—the outlook is dark. With nerves on edge no woman can enjoy life or be attractive to others. At such times, or when conditions cause undue suffering, every woman needs some natural help.

She should then know and use the famous and fully proved remedy—Beecham's Pills, so particularly adapted to the needs of women. Easy and safe to take, they tone the stomach, regulate the bowels and keep the liver and kidneys up to their work.

BEECHAM'S PILLS

They improve physical conditions and help all the organs of the body to perform their functions naturally and without suffering. A few doses make a vast difference. Try them and see for yourself how quickly a bright, clear, complexion replaces a sallow skin. If you need to get rid of dullness, pimples, headaches, backaches, lassitude, irritability and extreme nervousness learn the marvelous power for good of the harmless, natural remedy, Beecham's Pills.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander S. Porter, Jr., have returned from their trip abroad and are at their Manchester estate for a short time prior to opening their town house on Marlboro street for the Winter.

QUAKER GIRL'S "YES"

A YOUNG Quaker had been for some time visiting different glances at a maiden of the same persuasion, while she, true to the tenets of her upbringing, had given him slightly little encouragement. However, one day the opportunity of placing the matter upon a more stable footing presented itself to Seth, and he shyly inquired: "Martha, dost thou love me?"

"Why, Seth, we are commanded to love one another," quotes the maiden.

"Ah, Martha, but dost thou feel what the world calls love?"

"I hardly know what to tell thee Seth. I have tried to bestow my love upon all, but I have sometimes thought that that was getting more than thy share."

STATE ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

There has not been much unfavorable distribution on this day this week than anything else would serve to show that confidence in the near position of the future advance is not lacking.

Professionals are awaiting the technical reaction, which many do not think it possible for the bears to bring about, because of the easy money conditions. They argue that as soon as the public sees that stocks are loaded for big interests will be ready to follow.

Weakness of grain prices is much attention, and the question is now wondering whether the bumper crops will induce the farmers to spend their money last. The other side of the question is the fact that prices are bound to decline and the consequent ability of the public to cheer up.

The money market in financial circles to-day is in effect the difference of opinion in the State Street mind as to the future. The story is about that some of the largest financiers in London have been selling short of stocks and bonds, expecting to cover them at a much lower price as soon as the public begins to sell.

There are in the country at present a number of men who are in the habit of saying that money is "too high." It is much higher than it was a year ago, and is likely to be higher still. The purchasing power of the dollar has been cut down over 10 per cent. The unpleasant fact is that the dollar is going to be cut down still further, however, before it stops.

STOCK MARKET SHOWS A LOSS

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Stocks opened to-day with a downward movement over the first prices of Saturday. Baltimore & Ohio, Pennsylvania and Southern Pacific were the features, declining a fraction over the first prices. Other railroad stocks and specialties were fractional.

Reading, within the first hour, showed a decline of 1 1/2 to 2 points. Rock Island, all lost ground in the opening, and Steel, Copper and Northern Pacific were heavy. Other issues quoting fractional losses were:

Canadian Pacific opened up 1/2 a point, but soon lost 1 1/2 points. Union Pacific opened up 1/4 to a point, but lost 1/2 to 1 point. Steel opened up 1/4 to 1/2 point, but lost 1/2 to 1 point. Copper opened up 1/4 to 1/2 point, but lost 1/2 to 1 point. Northern Pacific opened up 1/4 to 1/2 point, but lost 1/2 to 1 point. Southern Pacific opened up 1/4 to 1/2 point, but lost 1/2 to 1 point. Union Pacific opened up 1/4 to 1/2 point, but lost 1/2 to 1 point. Steel opened up 1/4 to 1/2 point, but lost 1/2 to 1 point. Copper opened up 1/4 to 1/2 point, but lost 1/2 to 1 point. Northern Pacific opened up 1/4 to 1/2 point, but lost 1/2 to 1 point. Southern Pacific opened up 1/4 to 1/2 point, but lost 1/2 to 1 point.

The market showed a tendency to weakness throughout the session, but there was no material change in the situation. On the London Exchange American stocks were lower in sympathy with the weakness in New York. Transactions ranged from a fraction to a point or more were recorded.

MAYOR TO START CONTESTANTS IN TRUCK RUN

By J. C. KERRISON.

Mayor John F. Fitzgerald has consented to start the contestants in the BOSTON AMERICAN motor truck test on Friday morning, thus giving to the great test of commercial vehicles the virtual endorsement of the great city in which it starts and finishes.

Mayor Fitzgerald quickly accepted the invitation to give the word that will set in motion the motors of fifty competing cars on the trip from Boston to Worcester and return, and in doing so he will place the seal of approval on what is destined to be the greatest educational exemplification of motor trucks that has ever been held in this country, and which is in no way a race.

The contest is as far away from the racing proposition as black is from white. Speed in this instance would be nothing more than a foolishness, for it is not expected nor is it desired that the trucks loaded with from 1,000 to 10,000 pounds of merchandise as fast as even twenty miles an hour. The range of speed which will be enforced on this test is from sixteen miles an hour for 1,000 pound trucks, down to six miles an hour for the heavier trucks, so that it is readily seen that there is no secondary consideration, efficiency and reliability, not forgetting economy, being prime features that are to be developed in the test. These three features are what the businesses men of the country desire, as they will have a great tendency to the establishment of motor trucks in horse-drawn vehicles in many business houses.

The committee having charge of the run, has large number of applications received for positions as observers and passengers on the trucks, from men who desire to study the motor truck proposition from a closer range, and who feel that a trip of this kind would settle for all times the many questions that lie between them and the eventual use of motor trucks in their business.

It is said however, within the province of the committee or of the BOSTON AMERICAN to assign positions on the trucks, for any other than the official observers. The rules provide that the trucks shall carry their maximum load, including one observer. The drivers, are necessary, and they don't count in the load as the weight of the observer does. Therefore, upon request an entrant to carry passengers, would be without the privilege of contest board, as if such applicants make them carry additional weight, or an overload, for which they would not receive an credit in the final computation of the test.

Two limited entries were received yesterday, each being entered for the private owner's class, which gives to that class a greater prestige to-day than ever before, as both Fraser-Miller trucks, so entered by the Abbott-Detroit Company, of Detroit, have been in constant operation for at least three years. The other truck is entered by Mahoney's Express Company, of Hyde Park. It is a three-ton truck that has been in constant service in the express business between Boston and Hyde Park for two years, and for more than at least.

The work of weighing the trucks empty will be commenced at 7 o'clock to-morrow at the Harrison Square station, and will continue until 6 o'clock that evening, when it is hoped all trucks will have been weighed empty, and the trucks will then be at Worcester ready for the contest on the following day. The trucks will be weighed at the same place loaded beginning at 7 o'clock Friday morning, and will then take aboard their observers and proceed to the rendezvous in Worcester.

HARVARD MEN WANT GRAHAME-WHITE

The Harvard Aeronautical Society is making strenuous attempts, through its manager, Mr. Lovell, to secure the services of Harvard 1., to secure the use of Soldiers' Field for an exhibition flight by Grahame-White, after the International meet at Belmont Park. Grahame-White has written Mr. Martin that he should be very glad to give an exhibition on Soldiers' Field.

COLLEGE STUDENTS DANCE TO-NIGHT

Students of the various universities in and about Boston will hold their dance at Intercollegiate Hall, Roxbury, to-night. The renewals of the dance will be used for the purpose of maintaining the gymnasium, and the Students Associates of Boston is the name of the organization that has the affair in charge. A report of the various committees tends to show that the dance will be a social and financial success.

The EVENING AMERICAN guarantees to advertisers the largest circulation by far of any daily newspaper in Boston and over 200,000 more than the next highest evening paper, and over 75,000 more than all the other Boston evening papers combined. Circulation books open to all.

It isn't what you pay for advertising, it's what advertising pays you. Advertising that pays is the only cheap advertising. Advertising that doesn't pay is dear at any price. Advertising in the AMERICAN pays best, therefore it is the cheapest.

They are offered in three styles and at a very nominal cost to those who clip from the BOSTON AMERICAN daily and Sunday seven consecutive coupons and present them at the Dictionary Department, No. 212 Devonshire street.

There has never before been offered to the public such an opportunity to obtain such a valuable educational and reference book at such a small cost. The dictionary which is offered is of equal use in the office and the home.

It is the standard dictionary of the English language and contains all the words that are ever likely to be used. The coupon will be found on the second page of this edition of the BOSTON AMERICAN.

MUTT AND JEFF BOOKS FOR ALL

The Mutt and Jeff cartoons are "the talk of the country." They are the funniest and most original pictures ever drawn. Everybody with eyesight enjoys looking at them. Their popularity is unbounded. Every reader of the BOSTON AMERICAN can get a valuable book containing a large number of the best Mutt and Jeff pictures by clipping coupons from the Boston AMERICAN, Sunday and daily, for seven consecutive days, and by paying a small sum of money. The book is well bound and the pictures are fine on paper. It is a work of art, which will have lasting interest. The pictures were selected by Cliff Fisher, the man who drew them, and the inimitable creator of the famous Mutt and Jeff characters.

The AMERICAN is the Great Home Paper.

FARMERS ARM TO HUNT MANIAC

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 19.—Aided by heavily armed posse of farmers the police of Manton and Johnston to-day scoured the country looking for a man who ran amuck with a revolver after holding up three women and causing disturbances in a number of farmhouses. The stranger, who is believed to be insane, fired five shots at Elwood Burnside of the Cherry Hill section of Manton, and one shot at William Waterman, of the same section.

LOST AND FOUND

Shopping has its worries the same as other domestic duties—but perhaps more so, on account of the chances one takes in going about from store to store, to meet with the loss of a handbag containing a good sum of money. Don't worry! Just insert a small ad. in this column and let the American help you find it. You will be surprised how quickly it will be returned to you.

LOST—On elevated car, between Rogers av. (only building) and Winter st. subway, a roll of bills containing a considerable sum; liberal reward for return to 1083 Boston American.

LOST—Saturday, in Matlapan, lady's gold Elgin watch, initials "M. R." Address H 628, Boston American; reward.

SACRIFICE

PIANO SALE
$5 Down
$1 A Week

A Piano Sale here is always a sacrifice, always a bargain sale, always a mark-down sale. The very nature of business, as the public knows, is one of sacrifice. The business here is not conducted like the business of a regular Piano store down town, where they are expected to make a profit on each piano—where they get their profit DIRECTLY out of the sale of pianos. We don't let any piano loaf around on the floor of the Roxbury Storage Salesrooms—it comes to the Storage Salesrooms in DUE TIME, a sacrifice tag is clapped on to it, be it high grade, low grade or middle grade, and it is sold to the first man or woman who wants it for the price marked on the tag—not a cent more or less. The selling price is made on the Roxbury Storage Salesrooms "Expense percentage" basis and is figured to let the accounts out clean and clear without regard to profit—so you can see easily by this statement how these sales must necessarily be sacrifices.

Delivered free anywhere in unmarked wagon.

A FEW PEOPLE DON'T USE AMERICAN WANT ADS

For the same reason that modern methods were once scoffed at by our forefathers, yet, in spite of prejudice, progress has its way. The successful majority employ the "WANT AD WAY" to secure tenants, or buyers, or help, or employment. They employ the AMERICAN; realizing that it is the only paper which will carry their message to nearly all of the people.

The Wall Street Gamblers Are Feeling Cheerful

They Hope to Have Root for Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States—And Dix for Governor of New York State.

Copyright, 1910, by American-Journal-Examiner

Stocks are going up just now—you have noticed that.

We hope that you have noticed it without getting into the gambling game and giving the gamblers a chance to get your money when the stocks get ready to go down again.

The big wholesale gamblers that consider themselves wise are buying stocks fiercely.

As the demand for stocks increases—especially the speculative, dishonest stocks—the prices go up.

Do you know why the Wall street gamblers—and by this we mean the men that merely speculate and issue watered stocks, as distinct from the legitimate business men of the financial district—do you know why these gamblers are so gay?

They actually believe that President Taft is going to make Elihu Root Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court.

They know that as Chief Justice, or in any other place, Root could no more give up working for corporations and thinking for trusts than a dog could give up sheep killing after years of that pastime.

They know that Root as Chief Justice of the United States would be a most valuable asset for every dishonest trust, for every big public plunderer.

They actually believe that President Taft will take the lawyer behind the Equitable Life transactions, the lawyer of whom Whitney said: "Others will tell me what I CAN'T do, but Root will tell me how I can do anything I like"—they believe that Mr. Taft will take this man, this trust jackal, this Tweed lawyer, this rascal's ally, and insult decency in the United States by making such a man Chief Justice of the Supreme Court.

We do not believe that Mr. Taft is going to do anything of the kind. He knows that there are good lawyers, men of judicial mind, fit for the Supreme Bench, and that it isn't necessary to take Ryan's lawyer or any other trust lawyer and give to him the most important position in the United States.

But Wall Street thinks IT knows. It feels quite sure that Root is to be Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court. It sees already on the Supreme Bench Mr. Hughes, who decided that the State had no right to regulate railroad rates. It is a good thing for railroads to have as a Supreme Court judge a man who thinks that railroad rights are above the people's rights. They have such a man in Hughes.

Now they think they are going to have Elihu Root, who believes that any desire of a corporation is more important than the wishes of all the people combined.

Wall Street knows Root and the power of the corporations, and it feels that Root is to be the guiding spirit of the Supreme Court.

For that reason the cunning gamblers are beginning to accumulate stocks—for Root at the head of the Supreme Court of the United States would add great value to dishonest corporation stock, you may be sure.

Fortunately, President Taft KNOWS ELIHU ROOT. It was Root who acted as the go-between of the dishonest, swindling Sugar Trust when Root was sitting in the Senate of the United States.

In 1909, Mr. Taft's Attorney-General, Wickersham, wrote to John S. Wise, who had the indictment of the Sugar Trust scoundrels in hand, as follows:

Washington, Sunday, June 27, '09.

My Dear Wise:

Senator Root has sent me the proof of a petition signed by Rogers, Milburn & Guthrie in support of their contention that the statute of limitations has run in favor of Messrs. Parsons, Kissel and Hurlard. If the only overt acts done to carry out the objects of the unlawful conspiracy were those referred to in the brief, I should think they were insufficient to save the bar of the statute. A strong effort will be made to-morrow to persuade the President to interfere in some way to prevent the indictments; but, aside from that, no indictments should be returned against anyone if there is no reasonable ground to believe they can be sustained—if, for instance, the offenses charged are clearly barred by the statute. I need hardly say this to you. What I want to impress upon you is that if you have any reasonable doubt in the matter, you either have the grand jury ask the court for instructions, or if that is not feasible, that you advise the department of the specific charges on which you rely to save the statute before actually having the indictments brought in. You may telephone either to me or to Mr. Ellis, if I should be out of the department when you call, on this point.

Faithfully yours,

(Signed) GEO. W. WICKERSHAM.

P. S.—As I am writing from my house and have no copy of this, will you kindly have your typewriter make and send me a copy?

Here you see that Root was writing to Wickersham, Taft's Attorney-General, urging him not to indict those Sugar Trust thieves.

And the next day, as a matter of fact, Elihu Root called at the White House, and there isn't the slightest doubt that he tried to persuade President Taft "to let up" on the rascals of the Sugar Trust. But he was not sufficiently persuasive. Mr. Taft, who has proved that he is a man who does things, and doesn't talk much about them, went ahead with the Sugar Trust prosecutions and forced indictments—he did not consent to protect those thieves to please Elihu Root.

Do you imagine that Mr. Taft will make that same Elihu Root Chief Justice of the United States? You needn't imagine it—even if the Wall Street gamblers believe it.

In addition to their delight at the idea of having Elihu Root on the Supreme Bench—an appointment that would give to every corporation scoundrel in the United States a private entrance into the Supreme Court of the United States, the Wall Street gamblers are much delighted with their absolute conviction that Dix is to be the next Governor of the State of New York.

Dix, of course, is Murphy's man—and Murphy is the man, the chattel, the asset of the Street Car Trust and the other trusts. Since the gamblers of Wall Street made up their minds that Dix is to be the next Governor the stocks of the Street Car Trust have gone up steadily—and so have the other stocks of the corporations that rob New York voters.

As for Elihu Root and the Chief Justiceship of the United States, we believe that you may safely leave that matter to President Taft. HE KNOWS ROOT. He knows that he has been the brains, the contriving genius and jackal of the biggest thieves in the United States.

He has doubtless some admiration for Root's cunning, as he might have admiration for the cunning of some wily fox.

But President Taft will not affront the people by giving to Root, the hired man of the dishonest trusts, the higher position on the Supreme Bench in the United States. The man that emptied Tweed's pockets and then abandoned the penniless old thief will not be made the highest judge in this country.

Julia Ward Howe's Prophecy a Hundred Years Hence

In 1904, when she was eighty-five years old, Mrs. Julia Ward Howe wrote for the BOSTON AMERICAN a prophecy of what her infant great-granddaughter would see if she lived to her great-grandmother's age.

This great-granddaughter is little Julia Howe Hall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Howe Hall. The prophetic article written by Mrs. Julia Ward Howe for the BOSTON AMERICAN was as follows:

By JULIA WARD HOWE.

Copyright, 1904, by American-Journal-Examiner.

WHAT will my little great grandchild see if she lives to be as old as I am?

Prophecies of the future are dangerous to the reputation of the prophet.

Sully, the great Minister of Henry IV. of France, tells us that his master had devised a settlement of jurisdiction among European States which, if adopted, would render all future wars between them superfluous, if not impossible.

The plan of this novel arrangement may have been discussed between these two men, but its details have never been made public.

Louis XV., ruling the same country with a careless hand, said: "After me, the deluge."

The first Napoleon said: "In one hundred years from this time Europe will either be Cossack (Russian) or republican."

Strange that the downfall of his house should have built a stable republic on the ruins of empire in the country of his love and adoption.

Yet Napoleon truly foresaw that Europe would be the field for the great and perhaps final conflict between despotic rule and the freedom of peoples.

This struggle is still in progress, and will go on until the eternal principles of right toward which human society gravitates shall prevail in its ordinances.

But what will the blue eyes of my little pet see when she attains the age of eighty-five years?

I hope she will see a world of States held together by the bond of Christian charity, a society in which the crown of merit shall really be awarded to the most deserving, to those who hold their individual gifts, whether of person or of fortune, as advantages by which others, as well as themselves, should profit.

She will see her own country honored among the nations, as a power standing steadfastly for the diffusion of knowledge and the prevalence of justice.

She will, I hope, find in her own sex at large a standard of feeling and action which shall put to shame the pettiness of past ages.

She will find a wide agreement among people of earnest mind to watch over the administration of public affairs, permitting no invasion of the rights of the people.

She will find Christendom still entertaining its varieties of speculative opinion, but united by a deep and devout sympathy which shall include all who endeavor to aspire in a truly religious spirit.

Europe will surely not be Russian in feeling or in policy, but Russia will have become European in education and intelligence.

Republics may not have multiplied, but the principle of republicanism, representation sustained by popular education, will have come to prevail.

The fools of the world, the people who live for objects merely personal, involving neither use nor service to the community, will have greatly diminished in number.

Wherever existing at that time, they will form little groups which reasonable people will regard with compassion.

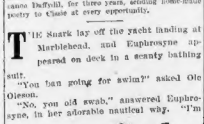
SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTER.

Captain Cobblestone lives aboard his yacht, the Snark, with his three daughters, Cissie, Euphrosyne and Pauline. Ole Olsson, the yacht's sailing master, has acted as governess to the girls and their home, in consequence, acquired a fashionable nautical manner. Cilderpress, a mysterious stranger, has followed the Snark from port to port in his canoe Daffydil, for three years, sending home-made poetry to Cissie at every opportunity.

THE Snark lay off the yacht landing at Marblehead, and Euphrosyne appeared on deck in a scanty bathing suit.

"You ban going for swim?" asked Ole Olsson.

"No, you old swab," answered Euphrosyne, in her adorable nautical wig. "I'm not going for a swim, I'm going duck shooting."



The bearded Ole was smiled in delight that his favorite pupil was so apt, and watched the girl swim ashore with long, powerful strokes, the twelve-bore held up clear of the water.

As Euphrosyne passed the Daffydil she heard a deep voice, which sounded like the purring of a racing car, recite:

And your hair, I think, is chestnut.
The clouds turn pink e'er the sun does sink,
And——

"——and—dash it all, is there no rhyme to chestnut?"

Euphrosyne giggled.

Cilderpress evidently heard the giggle, for he came on the deck of his canoe, and as soon as the girl had landed he swam rapidly ashore.

Euphrosyne had shot eight duck when the farmer, who owned them, broke upon the scene. He was demanding payment at the usual market rate, and the girl there'll be no mutiny allowed."

was explaining that she didn't carry a purse in her bathing suit, when Cilderpress came along and threw the farmer into a tree, where he looked as forlorn as last year's nest.

On reaching the beach, Cilderpress said: "Can you swim to the Snark? It's only five miles and the current against us isn't very strong?"

"Avast, you lubber," virulously responded Euphrosyne. "I can do that with one hand."

And so the two swam out in the cold green water they felt so much along that they kissed each other.

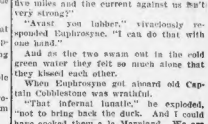
"That infernal lunatic," he exploded, "not to bring back the duck. And I could have cooked them a la Maryland. We are off to Havana to-night."

Many bets were made that the Daffydil would not be in Havana within a week after the Snark's arrival. Everybody aboard expected to lose their pilot-fish this time, all but Euphrosyne, who bet a dime against $10,000 with her elderly papa that Cilderpress and his Daffydil would not be thirty minutes behind the Snark.

When the powerful Snark entered Havana the Daffydil was quietly swinging to a cork anchor in the harbor!

"The scoundrel!" muttered Cobblestone, "he must have shipped his infernal Daffydil aboard one of the Ward liners."

"Sure, pop," murmured Euphrosyne, "that's what I was betting you."



"It's no good trying to shake him," said Cobblestone. "Better sign articles and ship as mate aboard that packet, Euphrosyne."

"Not a chance," said the girl. "You let when we hook up I'll be in command, and
